The Times 43016 5 (27 April 1922)

Two days later he again wrote to her asking her to give up the co-respondent and return, and promising that he would continue to love her in spite of all. When she then got leave and came to England and he went to Bratton to try to persuade his wife not to carry out her intention of going away with the co-respondent, but on his arrival there he found that she had gone off with the co-respondent.

On August 10, 1921, his wife wrote to him saying that she would never return to him, and she declined to give up the co-respondent.

Evidence was given that Mrs. Custance and Lord Conyngham stayed as husband and wife at the Hyde Park Hotel, Knightsbridge, London, on July 23-24, 1921.

Mr. Justice Hill pronounced a decree nisi with costs and the custody of the child of the marriage.

DECREE GRANTED TO AN ARMY OFFICER.

(Before Mr. Justice Hill.)

CUSTANCE v. CUSTANCE AND BURTON,
F. W. (MARQUESS CONYNGHAM.)

A decree nisi of divorce was pronounced by Mr. Justice Hill in an undefended suit by Major Studley Neville Custance, of 5, Panton-street, Haymarket, London, against Mrs. Antoinette Winifred Custance (whose maiden name was Thompson) on the ground of her adultery with Frederick William Burton, sixth Marquess Conyngham.

The evidence of the petitioner, taken on affidavit, was read by Mr. W. O. WILLIS. The petitioner said that he married on August 22, 1916, at the parish church of Bratton St. Maur, Somerset. After the marriage he lived with his wife at Fovant House, Wilts, and there was one child, a girl born in October, 1917. There were no differences until his wife met the co-respondent at Bratton on her return from Palestine with the child. After that the relations between them changed. On August 4, 1921, when he was in Cairo he received a letter from his wife, dated July 24, in which she said:—

"Dear Studie.—It hurts me frightfully to hurt you as I am going to. I love another man and have gone away with him. I beg that you will let Annie remain with Peter. Please set me free as soon as possible.—NANCY."

On the same day he received a letter from the co-respondent—written from Hyde Park Hotel, London—in which he said:—

"There is no possible reason for the great wrong I have done you beyond the fact I love your wife. I implore you who have also loved her to release her as soon as you possibly can. I want to make Nancy my wife with the least possible delay. The evidence you will require can be obtained at the above address.

I hope you will instruct your solicitors to act at once.—CONYNGHAM."

That was the first intimation that he had of his wife's relations with Lord Conyngham and the two letters came as a great surprise to him. Next day he wrote to his wife imploring her to give up the co-respondent and to return.

Two days later he again wrote to her asking her to give up the co-respondent and to return.

SUMMARY OF CASES.

Mr. Justice Darling gave judgment in an action which raised a new point under section 2 of the Gaming Act, 1835. The plaintiff sued the defendant, a bookmaker, for the return of money paid by cheque for bets lost; and the defendant counter-claimed for amounts credited by him to the plaintiff. The defendant said that he had received from the plaintiff in payment of bets numbers of cheques which he did not cash at once and when the plaintiff won a bet he sent back some of these cheques and credited him with the amount. The defendant contended that he was entitled to the benefit of the statute on the ground that he had actually paid the money which he had credited to the plaintiff in his books. His Lordship did not accept that argument, and he gave judgment for the plaintiff, (Malone v. Powell.)

In the Divorce Court Mr. Justice Hill made a decree of restitution of conjugal rights on the petition of Mrs. Beatrice Meade, a daughter of the late Lord Esmé Gordon. Divorce decrees nisi were granted by the same Judge at the suit of Lady Helen Whitaker and of Major Studley Neville Custance, who cited Lord Conyngham as co-respondent.

The following is an account of the services in respect of which the Decoration has been conferred:—

On the morning of the 5th February, 1917, a serious explosion, followed by a fire, occurred on the French troopship "St. Laurent" at Malta.

After some time it was observed that three men in the forepart of the ship, where the flames were fiercest, were cut off from the rest.

None of the boats near would approach the ship owing to the heat and danger of a further explosion, until Acting Quartermaster-Serjeant Brown persuaded a Maltese Policeman to row him out; but when within thirty yards of the ship the Policeman refused to go further.

Brown returned, and was then joined by Seymour, Allan and Cuthbertson. They rowed directly to the forepart of the ship, the sides of which were by this time red hot, while the plates were falling into the sea.

When they were within a few yards of the ship two of the three men in the forepart jumped into the sea and were rescued; the third, who had climbed up the mast, was saved later when the mast fell.

Early life

Prince Alexander was born in 1886 at Windsor Castle in Berkshire and was educated at Wellington College. His father was Prince Henry of Battenberg, the son of Prince Alexander of Hesse and by Rhine and Julie Therese née Countess of Hauke. His mother was Princess Henry of Battenberg (née The Princess Beatrice), the fifth daughter and the youngest child of Queen Victoria and Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha.

As he was the product of a morganatic marriage, Prince Henry of Battenberg took his style of Prince of Battenberg from his mother, Julia von Hauke, who was created Princess of Battenberg in her own right. As such Alexander was styled as His Serene Highness Prince Alexander of Battenberg from birth. In the United Kingdom he was styled His Highness Prince Alexander of Battenberg under a Royal Warrant passed by Queen Victoria in 1886.

Marquess of Carisbrooke

In July 1917, anti-German feeling during the First World War led King George V to change the name of the Royal House from the House of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha to the House of Windsor. He also relinquished, on behalf of his various relatives who were British subjects, the use of all German titles and styles.

The Battenberg family relinquished their titles of Prince and Princess of Battenberg and the styles of Highness and Serene Highness. Under Royal Warrant, they instead took the surname Mountbatten, an Anglised form of Battenberg. As such Prince Alexander became Sir Alexander Mountbatten^[1] (<http://www.gazettes-online.co.uk/archiveDownload.asp?issueNumber=30374&pageNumber=5&PageDuplicate=n>). THE MARQUESS OF CARISBROOKE

A GRANDSON OF QUEEN VICTORIA

The Marquess of Carisbrooke died yesterday at the age of 73.

The Most Hon. Sir Alexander Albert Mountbatten, G.C.B., G.C.V.O., first Marquess of Carisbrooke, Earl of Berkhamsted and Viscount Launceston, was born on November 23 1886, the eldest son of the late Prince Henry of Battenberg by his marriage to Princess Beatrice, youngest daughter of Queen Victoria. He was educated at Wellington and in the Britannia, and served in the Royal Navy from 1902 to 1908. Later he received a commission in the Grenadier Guards and served in the War of 1914-18 with his regiment and afterwards on the Staff. His services were mentioned in dispatches.

After the war he took up a business career, for a time working as a clerk in the offices of Lazard Brothers, the bankers. Subsequently he joined the boards of several large firms.

His engagement to Lady Irene Denison, the only daughter of the second Earl of Londesborough, was announced in May, 1917. He was still Captain His Highness Prince Alexander of Battenberg; he had been granted the title of "Highness" by Royal warrant in December 1886. In the Royal warrant in December, 1886. In the interval before the marriage, at King George V's request he discontinued by Royal warrant the style of "Highness" and assumed the surname of Mountbatten. Then on July 17, 1917, he was created Marquess of Carisbrooke, Earl of Berkhamsted and Viscount Launceston. Two days later the marriage was celebrated in the Chapel Royal and was attended by the King and Queen, Queen Alexandra, and the other members of the Royal Family.

In the War of 1939-45 Carisbrooke served in the R.A.F.V.R. and in 1953 was appointed an honorary Group Captain. In 1949 he became honorary Colonel of the 1st (C) Battalion, The London Rifle Brigade (The Rifle Brigade).

He was a senior steward of the National Greyhound Racing Club, president of the Bribery Prevention League, and London president of the Old Contemptibles.

He was created K.C.V.O. in 1910, G.C.V.O. in 1911, and G.C.B. in 1927. He also had Belgian, Russian, and Spanish Orders, the French Croix de Guerre with palms, and the Order of the Nile. His wife died in 1956. They had one daughter, Lady Iris Victoria Beatrice Grace, who married in 1941 Captain H. O'Malley, Irish Guards. The marriage was dissolved in 1946 and she resumed the surname of Mountbatten in 1949.

OPPOSED LIBERALS IN ISLINGTON.

MR. T. WILES SURPRISED.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

Among the candidates in the four divisions of the borough of Islington there are two well-known Liberals who have failed to secure what Mr. Gulland, the Liberal Whip, calls the blessing of the Government, and in whose former constituencies they now have to meet untried Unionists who have received the Coalition benediction. One of the men is Mr. T. Wiles, who is contesting the Upton Division of West Ham as a Coalitionist, has been compelled to abandon his campaign owing to influenza. It is hoped he will resume work in the constituency on Monday.

Election Items.

Mr. C. H. Meares (U.Co., Morpeth) descended a pit at Ashington yesterday, and visited the miners at their work.

Mr. Leo Maxse has offered his services to Colonel Sir John Norton Griffiths as the Unionist Coalition candidate for Central Wandsworth.

"If I am the first lower deck man elected to Parliament, I will not make myself a martyr," declared Mr. Joseph Cronin at Gillingham, Kent, when asked at a meeting if he would accept the £400 a year salary.

Sir Ernest Wild, K.C., who is contesting the Upton Division of West Ham as a Coalitionist, has been compelled to abandon his campaign owing to influenza. It is hoped he will resume work in the constituency on Monday.

It is probable that Mr. Lloyd George will address a Liberal Coalitionist meeting at Old Kent-road Baths next Thursday, but definite arrangements have not yet been made as he has also been invited to speak at Leeds, Leicester, and Bristol.

In response to inquiries as to the date of closing the poll, the Vice-Chancellor of Oxford University gives notice that he has ascertained that the Rule made by his Majesty in Council extending the time during which a poll shall be kept open "does not apply to University elections, the procedure at which is governed by the fifth schedule of the Act." It will therefore, as already stated, be impossible for him to record any votes received after 6.30 p.m. on Monday, December 16.

In an election manifesto, "Now for the Enemy at Home," issued by the British Socialist Party, it is stated that "the Coalition is the union of all the capitalist parties against the working class," and that "low wages for soldiers" necessarily accompany a system of conscription that the Government may threaten the "industrial worker with a loss of wage by driving him into the Army" whenever there is labour unrest.

The Jewish National Labour Council of Great Britain, in an appeal to the Jewish electors, urges them to vote for the Labour candidates because "it is only from the forces of labour and progress that we can expect justice, tolerance, equality, and redemption of our own national home, Palestine."

The fact that 11 Bangor discharged soldiers signed the nomination paper of Mr. Austin Harrison, who is opposing the Prime Minister, has given rise to the supposition that they were acting for all the discharged soldiers in the constituencies. This is erroneous. The chairman of the local branch of the National Federation of Discharged Sailors and Soldiers states that they acted entirely on their own responsibility, and their action is repudiated by the members of the Federation.

In Cambridgeshire there are 6,900 electors on the absent voters' list. The nomination on Wednesday closed at 3 o'clock. By 6 o'clock the printers had delivered the first batch of ballot papers, and 2,700 were handed to the Postmaster the same evening and the balance of 2,900 by noon on Thursday.

Lieutenant A. Baldwin Raper (Co., East Islington) has laid Mr. Smallwood, the Liberal candidate to

IRONWORKS NEAR DANVERS

The Ironworks near Danvers, Vermont, is one of the largest and most important in the State. It was established in 1842 by the late Hon. John C. Calhoun, and has since that time been the scene of a constant and successful industry. The works are situated on the banks of the Danvers River, and are supplied with water power from a dam at the mouth of the river. The works are owned and operated by the Danvers Ironworks Company, which was organized in 1842. The company has a capital of $1,000,000, and has a large and experienced management. The works produce a large quantity of iron and steel, and are well known throughout the State. The works are also engaged in the manufacture of machinery and other iron goods. The works are a source of pride to the State, and are a valuable asset to the community. The works are a fine example of the success of the iron industry in Vermont.

LORD FINLAY'S NAIRN PROPERTY.

The Nairn Golf Club house and part of the course are situated on Newton, Lord Finlay's estate at Nairn, which he has just placed in the hands of Messrs. Trollope for sale. The house overlooks the Moray Firth, and has large gardens.

Mr. Pandeli Balli is about to dispose of Alderbrook Park, his Surrey seat, near Cranleigh. The house faces south on the slope of Winterfold Hill, and the area of the property is 285 acres.

Wood and Co., at Leicester, on May 14, in 56 lots. Calcot Park, near Reading, with 317 acres, and stud farm buildings, is to be sold on May 21 by Messrs. Nicholas. The firm will also sell next month a Queen Anne residence, known as Hill House, between Basingstoke and Reading, and other houses having in all about 152 acres.

Jointly with Messrs. Buckland and Sons, Messrs. Hampton and Sons are to sell the late Mr. F. C. Carr Gomm's estate, three miles from Slough, known as The Chase, Farnham Royal, 88 acres, close to Stoke Poges and Burnham Beeches. May 20 is the date of the auction, and on the same day Messrs. Hampton and Sons are selling Oaklands Park, St. Albans, and 315 acres. The house is an old one, of Elizabethan character, and has been modernized. Another notable country house, to be submitted in London on the same occasion, is Thinghill, five miles from Hereford, Messrs. Osborn and Mercer being the agents. The house, of local stone with red sandstone dressings, stands on the summit of a hill in the midst of pleasure gardens, which are in turn surrounded by miniature parklands and paddocks. The house contains a great deal of decorative paintings which were done by Italian artists.

THE HERMIT OF HERTS.

The 20 acres of old grass land at Redcoats Green, between Hitchin and Stevenage, to be sold on Tuesday next by Messrs. George Jackson and Son, have a special interest, inasmuch as James Lucas, once notorious as "the Hermit of Herts," had a house on the land and lived there "remote, unfriended, solitary, slow," for fully a quarter of a century; until 1874. The house has long ago gone to ruins and been cleared away. Its story is told by Dickens in the Christmas number of All the Year Round for 1861, under the title of "Tom Tiddler's Ground."

THE DUCHESS OF WESTMINSTER'S TOWN HOUSE.

The elaborately carved mantelpiece, decorated ceiling, and crimson silk walls of the dining room give an idea of the general style of the town house, No. 109, Lancaster-gate, the long lease of which is now in the market by order of the Duchess of Westminster. She has expended a very large sum of money upon the house, and Messrs. Giddy and Giddy, the agents, state that "every known modern improvement" has been embodied in the premises. The house overlooks Hyde Park and Kensington-gardens.

LETTINGS OF COUNTRY HOUSES.

All parts of the country are represented in the list published in The Times to-day, of country, seaside, and riverside residences to be let furnished. The houses, too, are a representative collection, including places like Levens Hall, Westmorland, and Biltons, near Canterbury. Some of the properties are to be let for special periods such as Ascot Week, others for the whole of the summer. Further selections will be published in The Times of April 29, and May 6, 13, 20, and 27.

The Estate Market. Lord Salisbury's New Town House.

Mayfair Sales Of Half A Million Sterling.

THE TIMES, SATURDAY, APRIL 26, 1919.

THE ESTATE MARKET.

LORD SALISBURY'S NEW TOWN HOUSE.

MAYFAIR SALES OF HALF A MILLION STERLING.

Lord Salisbury, who recently sold his town house in Arlington-street, Piccadilly, to Lady Michelham for £120,000, has purchased the adjoining house, No. 21, for approximately £80,000. The transactions were carried out through Messrs. William Grogan and Boyd, whose sales of private residences in Mayfair, St. James's, and Westminster in the last fortnight or three weeks amount to just £385,000. Other sales of town houses, by Messrs. Trollope, Messrs. Hampton and Sons, Messrs. Duncan B. Gray and Partners, and other firms, reported in The Times, bring the total realizations of this class of property up to over half a million sterling this month, taking into account only houses in or near Mayfair. If South Kensington and Hampstead sales were added the total for the month would exceed £600,000.

CLIVEDEN TO BE LET.

To the many fine residential properties now awaiting tenants for the summer, and ready in every respect for immediate entry, must be added Major Waldorf Astor's stately mansion of Cliveden. Built for the Duke of Sutherland, Cliveden is one of the most famous houses in the kingdom, and has been occupied by Royalty, nobility, poets, and politicians. It was sold by the Duke of Westminster to its present owner.

Messrs. Driver, Jonas, and Co. have been appointed agents for the letting of the property, furnished, for the season. Birrons, near Canterbury, Levens Hall, Westmorland, and other splendid mansions, as well as a very large number of pleasantly situated houses of moderate size, were included in the first list of furnished accommodation for the summer months published in The Times of Tuesday last. Further lists will be published in these columns on Tuesday next and on May 6, 13, 20, and 27. For those who require furnished houses in the country and at the seaside this season the best advice that can be given is to make arrangements early. Accommodation is comparatively limited, and terms will not become easier as the season advances.

Lord Lindsey is about to sell his Lincs estates of 3,000 acres at Uffington and Tallington. The farms are well equipped with superior modern houses and buildings. Messrs. Richardson and Son are the agents.

THE URGENT NEED OF REPAIRS.

It would be an excellent thing if some of the energy now devoted to the discussion of the need for new houses were applied to the question of how to get the old ones repaired. No very close inspection, or large fund of technical knowledge, is needed to convince anyone that a steady deterioration has taken place in most houses in the last four or five years. The absence of workmen, and the scarcity and exorbitant price of materials, have resulted in a general omission to observe the very salutary practice of painting outside every third year and inside every seventh year. And it is not only painting, important as it is to the preservation and appearance of premises, that has been neglected. Papering and whitewashing are in the same state, but are not so important structurally. The war period has been a period of patching up, and the average skill of the available workmen has not been high. The result is that dilapidations are accruing at an alarming rate. Orders for repairs.

LORD CHARLES CONYNGHAM'S AFFAIRS.

The first meeting of the creditors of Lord Charles Conyngham, described as of the Great Western Hotel, Newquay, and of no occupation, was held at Truro on Saturday. The statement of affairs showed liabilities £910 17s. and assets nil. The debtor, who is 48 and was formerly a lieutenant in the Rifle Brigade, attributed his failure to exorbitant interest charged by moneylenders, but was unable to furnish any specific particulars of such extortionate charges. In June, 1902, he executed a settlement to trustees of his share and interest under the will of his father, George Henry Marquess Conyngham, and the Official Receiver was informed that he indirectly derived an income from the estate of his late mother, who died in 1907. The debtor was not present at the meeting, but he had lodged a proposal for a composition at 10s. in the £, and the meeting was adjourned for the creditors to have an opportunity of considering the offer.

BOGUS LORD LOSES ANNULMENT ACTION

Court Voids Marriage of Mrs.
B. D. R. Duncan to Self-Styled
Lord Charles Conyngham.

WEDDING HELD BIGAMOUS

'Peer' Said Now to Be Selling
'Cancer Remedy' in Los Angeles
—Had Crested Shirts.

An annulment of her marriage to Bertram Haldane Duncan, who has been known as Lord Charles Conyngham, Arthur C. Conyngham, the Earl of Camperdown, and other names, has been granted to Mrs. Bertha Dore Rado Duncan, of 123 West Fifty-seventh Street, it was revealed yesterday. The decree was signed by Supreme Court Justice Chester B. McLaughlin on a report by John Ford, official referee.

One of the exhibits at the trial was a white shirt bearing the crest "C. C.," offered to prove that the defendant was the same man who called himself Lord Charles Conyngham. Albert S. Osborne, handwriting expert, testified that the writing of letters and other exhibits was all done by the defendant. Mrs. Duncan sued on the ground that at the time the defendant married her on Dec. 1, 1925, he was the husband of the former Virginia R. H. von Bittenfeld, whom he married in Philadelphia on July 8 of the same year, as Lord Charles Conyngham.

A newspaper clipping of Aug. 6, 1925, was offered in evidence showing that the supposed Lady Conyngham, who had been introduced by her husband under that title, had found that the defendant had no title and that his name was not Conyngham. She divorced him in San Francisco on July 17, 1928, on the ground that he had falsely represented himself to be Lord Arthur Charles Conyngham and had refused to tell her his real name. She had been the widow of a wealthy Hawaiian planter, and later of a Prussian Colonel.

Mrs. Duncan, who was living at 277 Park Avenue when she met the defendant, testified that she had not lived with him since the Spring of 1932, and had not learned of his previous marriage until last February. Her attorney put in evidence a paper written by the defendant transferring to Mrs. Duncan property of which he claimed ownership, including "approximately 400,000 acres known as the Glen Eagles estate, at Pitlochry, Scotland, on which there are eleven mortgages made by my father and his brother, the former Earl of Camperdown." He also asserted ownership of a number of oil leases, and "3,000,000 acres of land" in Texas.

Robert A. Gray, a consulting engineer, of 252 Lexington Avenue, testified that he knew Duncan when he called himself Lord Conyngham and that he knew of an investigation as to the defendant's claims to a title which had been made by Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong, former British Consul General here, which showed that the claims were bogus. Gray said that on one occasion in the defendant's room in the Commodore Hotel the latter showed him white shirts bearing the "C. C." crest, and said:

"Take these away or give them away, I don't want them around."

A number of letters written by the defendant to the plaintiff from Los Angeles last year showed that he was then selling a cancer "remedy" and "barely making a living."

"I am up against it," he wrote, "but I will work my way out of it. I always have."

Mrs. Duncan testified that her husband never supported her, but, on the contrary, "spent her money freely."

DEATH OF SIR GEORGE ERRINGTON.

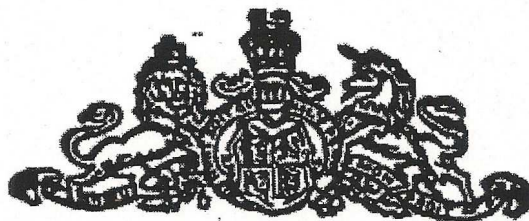

THE VATICAN MISSION.

Recollections of a famous episode in the Irish Land War some 40 years ago will be aroused by the announcement of the death of Sir George Errington at the age of 81. Sir George, who had for many years lived the retired life of an Irish country gentleman at his residence, Ramsfort House, Gorey, Co. Wexford, was in his usual health on Friday morning last, but he was taken ill suddenly and died the same evening.

Mr. Errington (he was created a baronet in 1885) came of an old Roman Catholic family and was born at Clint, in Yorkshire, son of Mr. Michael Errington and his wife Rosanna O'Farrell, who was of Co. Kildare origin. He was educated at Ushaw College, Durham, and at the Roman Catholic University then just founded in Dublin under the direction of Newman. In 1873 he joined the Home Rule movement, then just started by Isaac Butt, and at the General Election of 1874 he entered Parliament as member for Co. Longford. The Home Rulers of those days, needless to say, were a very moderate and highly respectable body, the first batch of M.P.'s including such men as Lord Francis Conyngham, Lord Robert Montague, The O'Connor Don, Sir George Bowyer, Colonel King-Harman, and Colonel Colthurst. With the end of the seventies, however, came the "bad years"—distress in Ireland and the founding of the Land League under the influence of Parnell and Davitt. Butt was overthrown, the movement fell into the hands of the Extremists, and the majority of the early Moderates withdrew from it. Mr. Errington, however, retained his seat till 1885 as a "Whig" and a supporter of Gladstone's land legislation.

It was in 1881 that the "Errington Mission" to the Vatican brought him into sudden and undesired prominence. The story was a simple and a natural one in itself, but Gladstone's characteristic incapacity to steer a direct course led him and his envoy into unexpected difficulties, and much Parliamentary and public uproar was the result. Parnell and his movement having gone beyond all bounds, Gladstone at Leeds declared in October, 1881, that the "final conflict" in Ireland "between law and sheer lawlessness" had come, but that "the resources of civilization against its enemies are not yet exhausted." Parnell and some hundreds of his leading supporters were arrested and locked up in Kilmainham, and the Prime Minister, as a second string, turned to the Vatican for support against the Irish leader, as Peel had previously done in the case of O'Connell. In December he wrote to Cardinal Newman a long letter enclosing a dossier, compiled from incendiary speeches or sermons delivered by Irish priests, hinted that if they had been laymen he would have "settled their cases by putting them into gaol," added that he would hold the Pope himself, "if apprised of these facts," responsible "for the conduct of the priests," and asked Newman to consider whether he should write to Rome on the subject.

Law Report, June 24.

SUMMARY OF CASES.

Mr. Justice Eve dismissed the action which was brought by a writer of cinematograph plays for an injunction to restrain a firm of film producers from publishing a film called "The Sequel." The plaintiff invented and wrote a film called "The Pirates of Commerce," in which one of the characters was a German spy, and she alleged that the defendant company had been guilty of plagiarism. (Abrahams v. The Charles Urban Trading Company.)

Mr. Justice Astbury entered judgment for the owners of the Granville Hotel, Ramsgate, and the Empire Hotel, Buxton, on their petition of right for a fair rent for the use and occupation of the premises by the military authorities. The petition had stood over pending delivery of the judgment of the House of Lords in the De Keyser's Royal Hotel appeal (36 The Times Law Reports, 600). (Spiers and Pond, Limited, v. The King.)

Judgment for £150 damages was given by Mr. Justice McCardie in an action by a solicitor against bankers because of the dishonouring of a cheque. (Burn v. National Provincial and Union Bank of England.)

Mr. Justice Astbury gave judgment on a summons which was taken out by the Marquess Conyngham to determine whether, on the true construction of the will and codicil of his brother, the late marquess, he was entitled during life to the surplus rents and profits of the Kent estates. His Lordship decreed that during the lifetime of the plaintiff, so long as he had no son, the defendant, his nephew, was entitled to the surplus rents and profits. (In re Marquess Conyngham—Conyngham v. Conyngham.)

The jury who heard consolidated suits before the President of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division failed to agree. In one of the suits the wife petitioned for restitution of conjugal rights and in the other the husband, an Army officer, cross-petitioned for dissolution of the marriage. (Allen v. Allen—Allen v. Allen and Melville.)

THE CONYNGHAM ESTATES.

IN RE MARQUESS CONYNGHAM— CONYNGHAM v. CONYNGHAM.

(Before MR. JUSTICE ASTBURY.)

The late Lord Conyngham by his will, dated April 11, 1915, after appointing his mother and Mr. Herbert Arthur Scawen Blunt trustees, devised his estates in Kent on trust to manage the estates, to raise moneys to pay off the existing mortgages, and pay certain annuities. The testator then gave the Kent estates on uses and trusts corresponding to the uses and trusts of his Irish estates. He had settled his Irish estates for life on the plaintiff, the present Marquess, who was his brother, with remainder to his brother's issue in tail male, with remainder to John Francis Ainsworth, the testator's nephew, for life, with remainder to his issue in tail male, with remainder to "my own right heirs."

By a codicil to his will, dated November 18, 1916, the testator revoked all the benefits given to his brother under his will, and he substituted the gift of an annuity. The testator died on November 8, 1918, and this summons was taken out by the plaintiff, who has no children, to determine whether on the true construction of the will and codicil he, as heir-at-law, was entitled during life, so long as no son was born to him, to the surplus rents and profits of the Kent estates after the payment of the incumbrances and annuities charged on them.

Mr. Maughan, K.C., Mr. Hildyard, K.C., and Mr. F. McMullan appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Micklem, K.C., and Mr. Byrne for the infant defendant, John Francis Ainsworth; Mr. Luxmoore, K.C., Mr. Dighton Pollock, and Mr. A. H. Droop for the trustees and executors of the will.

Mr. MAUGHAN said that as his client no longer took an equitable estate for life, since that had been revoked by the codicil, the question was whether the testator had indicated in his will what was to happen to the surplus rents of the Kent estates pending the birth of a son to his brother.

Mr. MICKLEM contended that the testator intended to make an exhaustive disposition of his estate and that the heir-at-law should not take. He relied on In re Willis—Crossman v. Kirkaldy ([1917] 1 Ch., 365).

JUDGMENT.

MR. JUSTICE ASTBURY said that it was submitted on behalf of the plaintiff that there was an intestacy in respect of the rents and profits of the Kent estates, but the ultimate remainderman, John Francis Ainsworth, contended that his interest, in the events which had happened, had been accelerated, and that he was entitled to the rents and profits until his own estate became absolute or until a son was born to the plaintiff. The facts in In re Willis (supra) were indistinguishable from the facts in the case before him, except that in In re Willis the particular estate failed by reason of the disclaimer of the devisee, whereas here there was a revocation by the testator. In that case all the authorities relied on by the plaintiff were considered, and he thought that it was his duty to follow it. He came to the conclusion that the estate of the ultimate remainderman was accelerated in respect of these rents, and accordingly he declared that during the lifetime of the plaintiff, so long as no son should be born to him, the defendant, John Francis Ainsworth, was entitled to the surplus rents and profits of the Kent estates in the hands of the trustees.

SUMMARY OF CASES.

The Court of Appeal—the Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Warrington and Scrutton—dismissed an appeal from a decision of Mr. Justice Astbury on the construction of the will of the late Lord Conyngham.

Mr. Justice Horridge began the hearing of a divorce suit by Mr. H. M. Wakley, an architect, on the ground of his wife's alleged adultery with a Mr. J. Reiss. Counsel in opening the case said that the co-respondent had been head of his house at Repton, and that he was interned in 1916, but on his release had obtained a commission in the British Army. (Wakley v. Wakley and Reiss.)

PRICE v. PRICE AND HUNTER (BOURKE INTERVENING).

(Before MR. JUSTICE HORRIDGE.)

In this suit Mr. Percy Reginald Price, a motor-car owner, of Finchley, prayed for the dissolution of his marriage with Violet Gladys Price, whose maiden name was Moore, on the ground of her adultery with Mr. Harry Hunter. By her answer the respondent denied this allegation. She alleged that the petitioner had been guilty of cruelty and neglect, and that he had committed adultery with the intervener, Constance Bourke, and she prayed for a dissolution of marriage.

The petitioner denied these allegations, and the intervener denied the adultery. The co-respondent also denied adultery with the respondent.

To-day neither the respondent nor the co-respondent went into the witness box.

Sir Ellis Hume-Williams, K.C., and Mr. Noel Middleton appeared for the petitioner; Mr. Thorn Drury, K.C., and Mr. W. O. Willis for the respondent; Mr. Walter Frampton for the co-respondent; Sir Edward Carson, K.C., and Mr. Cotes-Freedy for the intervener.

At the sitting of the Court,

Mr. DRURY said that the respondent was not present. He was told that she was ill. He begged leave to reserve his cross-examination.

SIR ELLIS HUME-WILLIAMS said that the co-respondent was a detective in the London police force, and he lived at Muswell Hill. The petitioner and the respondent were married on February 8, 1916, at the Register office, Edmonton.

THE CONYNGHAM ESTATES.

CONSTRUCTION OF A WILL.

COURT OF APPEAL.

IN RE MARQUESS CONYNGHAM—CONYNGHAM v. CONYNGHAM.

(Before the MASTER of the ROLLS and LORDS JUSTICES WARRINGTON and SCRUTTON.)

An interesting question of law on the construction of the will of the late Marquess Conyngham was raised by this appeal from a decision of Mr. Justice Astbury, reported in The Times of June 25, 1920 (36 The Times L.R. 801, and [1920] 2 Ch. 495).

The late Lord Conyngham by his will, dated April 11, 1915, after appointing his mother and Mr. Herbert Arthur Scawen Blunt trustees, devised his estate in Kent on trust to manage the estates, to raise moneys to pay off the existing mortgages, and pay certain annuities. The testator then gave the Kent estates on uses and trusts corresponding to the uses and trusts of his Irish estates. He had settled his Irish estates for life on the plaintiff, the present Marquess, who was his brother, with remainder to his brother's issue in tail male, with remainder to John Francis Ainsworth, the testator's nephew, for life, with remainder to his issue in tail male, with remainder to "my own right heirs."

By a codicil to his will, dated November 18, 1916, the testator revoked all the benefits given to his brother under his will, and he substituted the gift of an annuity. The testator died on November 8, 1918, and a summons was taken out by the plaintiff, who has no children, to determine whether on the true construction of the will and codicil he, as heir-at-law, was entitled during life, so long as no son was born to him, to the surplus rents and profits of the Kent estates after the payment of the encumbrances and annuities charged on them.

For John Francis Ainsworth, an infant, it was contended that his interest in the estate was accelerated, and that, as owner of the next life estate, he was entitled to the surplus rents and profits until his own estate became absolute, or until a son was born to the plaintiff.

Mr. Justice Astbury, following the decision in In re Willis—Crossman v. Kirkaldy ([1917] 1 Ch. 365), adopted the latter contention, and gave judgment to that effect.

The plaintiff appealed.

Mr. Maugham, K.C., and Mr. F. McMullan appeared for the appellant; Mr. Micklem, K.C., Mr. Romer, K.C., and Mr. Byrne for John Francis Ainsworth; Mr. Luxmoore, K.C., and Mr. Dighton Pollock for the executors and trustees of the will.

At the conclusion of the arguments, the COURT reserved judgment.

The MASTER of the ROLLS said that the judgment of the Court would be delivered by Lord Justice Warrington.

DIVORCE FOR LADY CONYNGHAM.

DECREE IN IRISH COURT.

In Dublin yesterday, before Mr. Justice Dodd, the Marchioness Conyngham sought a divorce a mensa et thoro from the Marquess Conyngham on the grounds of misconduct.

According to the statement of plaintiff's counsel the parties were married in London in November, 1911, Lady Conyngham being an Australian by birth. They lived in Paris and other places until 1917. Lord Conyngham was then in the Army. In 1918 he went to Scotland, and from that date he refused to see her. She wrote and telegraphed requesting him to come back, and in March, 1918, he wrote that it was impossible to live with her again, and that he was now living with someone else.

Mr. Jellett, K.C., for the respondent, said that he had been instructed not to oppose the application, but he desired to point out that there was no charge of cruelty or terrorism.

Lady Conyngham and other witnesses having been examined, Mr. Justice Dodd granted a decree a mensa et thoro.

SUMMARY OF CASES.

The Lord Chief Justice, with a special jury, began the hearing of an action by a doctor for the return of money which he says was obtained from him by the fraudulent misrepresentation of two directors of a company which is now in liquidation. The plaintiff alleges that the defendants falsely represented that the company owned radium mines in Portugal. (Thomas v. Harding Brothers (Engineers, Westminster) and others.)

Mr. Justice Eve dismissed a summons which was taken out by the Grand Opera Syndicate, Limited, against the Covent Garden Estate Company asking whether the subsisting lease of the Covent Garden Theatre permitted the user of the theatre for boxing entertainments and cinematograph exhibitions. His Lordship thought that the questions propounded in the summons were too vague to enable the Court to say whether the proposed user of the premises would constitute a breach of the covenants in the Duke of Bedford's lease.

The House of Lords read a second time a Bill presented by the Marchioness Conyngham for the dissolution of her marriage. She had already obtained a divorce a mensa et thoro in the Irish Courts.

HOUSE OF LORDS. A PEER'S DIVORCE.

CONYNGHAM DIVORCE BILL.

(Before LORD BUCKMASTER, LORD FAIRMOORE, and LORD CARSON.)

This Bill was presented by Bessie Alice Marchioness Conyngham, of Somers Place, London, W., to dissolve her marriage with Frederick William Buxton Marquess Conyngham and to enable her to marry again.

The Bill set out that the parties were married on November 28, 1914. The petitioner was the daughter of the late Mr. W. A. Tobin, of New South Wales, and her husband was then domiciled in Ireland. There were no children. In December, 1918 the husband wrote to the petitioner that he had made up his mind that it was impossible for him to live with her again. She replied that she could hardly realize, even though things had not been altogether satisfactory in the past that he really could mean to desert her and live with someone else, that surely he must understand that she could not consent to that arrangement, and she asked him to come back to her. His reply was that it was impossible for him to do as she desired. The petitioner obtained evidence of her husband's misconduct with a woman whose name was unknown to her at the Gresham Hotel, Dublin. In November, 1919, the Court of Session in Edinburgh pronounced a decree of divorce on the petition of Sir John Home Purves Hume Campbell against his wife on the ground of her adultery with Lord Conyngham. The petitioner obtained an order for restitution of conjugal rights, which was not obeyed, and subsequently in May of this year she was granted in the Irish Courts a decree a mensa et thoro, the suit being undefended. This Bill was then lodged, and in addition to the facts above stated it dealt at length with the settlements made on the marriage. The Bill was not opposed by Lord Conyngham, but he appeared by counsel, and desired to be heard when the question of altering the settlements was to be dealt with.

Mr. Holman Gregory, K.C., and the Hon. Victor Russell appeared in support of the Bill. Mr. C. M. Le Breton, K.C., and Mr. W. O. Willis represented the respondent.

The learned counsel was about to open the facts, when

LORD BUCKMASTER said that their Lordships were conversant with the facts and counsel might call the petitioner and he would examine her.

Lady Conyngham was then sworn and was accommodated with a seat within the Bar.

In reply to questions asked her by LORD BUCKMASTER,

Lady Conyngham said that she was married on November 28, 1914, and she and Lord Conyngham lived in Paris and elsewhere. She continued to live with him as his wife down to January, 1918. They had been living together before both in England and Scotland, but on some information which came to her there was in 1919 correspondence, and in reply to a letter asking him to come back to her, her husband wrote that it was impossible for him to live with her again, and he "wished her all good luck in the future." She then obtained an order for restitution of conjugal rights in the English Courts. That order was not obeyed.

She found out that her husband was living with another woman, and she obtained a decree in the Irish Courts.

Mr. James Boyle, manager of the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, said that on January 6, 1916, Lord Conyngham stayed at the hotel accompanied by a lady who was not the lady who had just given evidence. He came again to the hotel with the same lady on January 25. On both occasions they occupied rooms as man and wife.

At this stage, on the motion of LORD BUCKMASTER, the Bill was read a second time, questions of settlement being directed to stand over until the Bill was before the Committee.

OBITUARY.

SIR HUGH MCCALMONT

SOLDIER AND HORSEMAN.

A cavalryman, a sportsman, a horseman, an Orangeman, all of the most ardent, has passed away in Major-General Sir Hugh McCalmont, whose death, at the age of 79, is announced on another page. He was one of many eminent members of a family which, migrating from Scotland early in the 17th century, carried to Northern Ireland the best characteristics of its race, while it acquired there the best that were native to an unconquerable people. Thus the McCalmonts shone equally in politics, in war, in sport, and in landlordism in its best form, and in all Sir Hugh kept high the family traditions.

Born on February 9, 1845, he was the eldest son of James McCalmont, of Abbeylands and Breen, Co. Antrim. On his mother's side the late Robert Martin, of Ross, Galway, long known as "Ballyhooly" from the title of his famous song, was his uncle, and the late Miss Violet Martin ("Martin Ross"), the friend and collaborator of Miss Conone Somerville, was his aunt. By the pleasant paths of Eton and Christ Church, Hugh McCalmont passed into the 9th Lancers at the age of 20. Five years later he was in the field as a volunteer under Wolseley in the Red River Expedition, in which the rebels of Louis Riel proved somewhat less troublesome than the difficulties of their terrain. McCalmont did such good service at Fort Garry that on him was conferred the time-honoured distinction of carrying home the dispatches. Another three years and he was beside "Sir Garnet" again, this time in Ashanti, where, as A.D.C. to the commander, he witnessed Amoaful, Kumasi, and all the stages of that risky little Imperial enterprise. There being for a time no further wars of our own available, in 1877 McCalmont got himself appointed Military Attaché to our Embassy at Constantinople, thereby contriving to accompany the Turkish Army into the field against the Russians. The siege and storming of Kars was his chief experience, and his rewards a medal from the Turks and a brevet majority from our own service.

MISS MRS. DEWEY'S DEFENSE.
A WIFE'S CLAIM AGAINST HER FORMER HUSBAND.

DUNNED BY V. DEWEY.

By Mrs. J. J. Deane and a Special Jury.

The hearing was continued at the session in which Mrs. Dewey stated that she had been at 27, Queen's-gate, N.W., claimed from her former husband, Lieutenant-Colonel Ian Oswald Dewey, at 1, St. James's-place, Mayfair, W., the repayment of certain sums which she alleged that he had lent her, as well as for the specific performance of an alleged contract to make proper provision for her during her life, and damages for alleged breach of contract.

Mr. John Hume-Williams, K.C., and Mr. M. J. Kelly appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Edward Marshall Hall, K.C., Mr. Norman Macmillan, K.C., and Mr. A. H. Davis for the defendant.

Mrs. Dewey's allegations that she obtained appointments for her husband, and with his knowledge, she obtained his services, relations with a general office in the British Army. During the last day's hearing this office was referred to as "General X."

"General X" Refused.

When his Lordship took his seat, Mr. Justice Maclean, addressing the Edward Marshall Hall, said:—"I am not satisfied that the name of the general should be withheld."

Mr. Edward Marshall Hall.—I have been looking the general over, and in view of the circumstances and the matter dealt by the defendant, I do not think it possible to keep it out.

Mr. Justice Maclean.—The general is dead, but many members of the public may not appreciate that fact and consequently may tell me that who are absolutely free from criticism.

Mr. John Hume-Williams.—At the general is dead, I had hoped that we might have been able to keep his name out, but if your Lordship thinks that it might bring suspicion on others I regret the necessity, but I recognize that it is necessary.

Mr. Justice Maclean.—Then we will see Mr. Deane. I am sorry that the plaintiff, who had gone into the witness-box, Mrs. Deane said:—"You lived at a hotel at Paris, you had a secretary, with a general whom we may call 'Y'."

Mr. Deane.—Generally John Deane. Mr. John Hume-Williams.—Your Lordship presumes that he was quarter-master-general of the Forces during the war.

Mr. Justice Maclean.—The defendant by Mr. Deane Hume-Williams was then questioned. Explaining a letter in which her husband said:—"I'll f. l. I am being asked if my health and I shall be sent to front lines for a bit they are more likely to be more than later when I want them." The witness said that she had been worried about her husband's health, who gave her John Deane the message. Later her husband went to the hospital in France at Paris, where he remained until the end of the war. He held staff appointments all through the war.

Mr. John Hume-Williams said another letter in which Colonel Dewey wrote:—"As to Mrs. H., I always tell the line that I have no more left." Colonel said that "Mrs. H." would not "Mrs. Deane" but he would not see the witness to destroy the marriage. He was not your witness as in a hearing before of Mr. Justice Maclean.—The witness had been told you have an intention with your husband?

Mr. Justice Maclean.—I told him that I had seen a French lawyer and that he had told me that the judge would ask me whether they were to be taken on money for my father. My husband said:—"You know that I have no more left, but I promise you that when I am in a financial position in which I will support you, I will see that you are as well as I can." I said:—"All right." I looked at him.

Did the judge say anything to you about maintenance?—"I asked the first if I would go back to my husband. At the first or second interview they asked me if I wished them to do anything about my money in the future from my husband. I told them that I had been entirely managed by my husband and myself."

Mr. Justice Maclean.—After that the point about money had gone. You made an application to the French Court?—"No."

Mrs. Deane said that her husband did not appear to defend the proceedings. An order was made.

Asked about a letter in which her husband told her that he had been asked to resign a post with a Mr. Hume, Mrs. Deane said that he was the husband of Lady Marshall Maclean, formerly the Duchess of Richmond. She (the witness) often went to see Lady Marshall Maclean, but she had never stayed with her. Before the divorce she had made absolute payment to Mrs. Deane in her own hand for that she had some money and asked her to sell some things for her. She was not told that.

Mr. John Hume-Williams.—Has he ever repaid you or asked to repay you?—"No. He has only paid me £100 on account after the divorce."

Did you have money at the time?—"I had very little money, but I was able to send him the £100 because my grandfather had died. I had some interest on that money, and I was able to return some."

Lord and Lady Carmarvon.

Mrs. Deane said that she first met Lady Carmarvon in 1922. Both Lord and Lady Carmarvon were "great wonderful kind" to her and she made their London house her home for two years. She looked on Lady Carmarvon as her greatest friend and looked for much. Lady Carmarvon said she had asked her husband to take some things to a hotel in Paris and had told her to Lady Carmarvon to be brought home to her (the witness). That was how Colonel Dewey met Lady Carmarvon.

Mr. John Hume-Williams.—Did you leave the Carmarvons in February, 1923?—"Yes."

Why did you leave?—"It was during the last few months. I had met Lady Carmarvon in November that I could not keep on her hospitality any longer. My hat, which had been at her two years, was to become less in May, 1923."

Did you know that a friendship had grown up between your husband and Lady Carmarvon?—"I naturally knew."

Mr. John Hume-Williams.—During 1922 were you paid into Colonel Dewey's account?—"At the time when he wrote the letter he had a balance of £1,000."

Mr. John Hume-Williams.—Have there been any payments into the account since that time?—"I have not seen the account since we closed it in London."

Did you see any money at the time?—"I did not see any money at the time."

Did you see any money at the time?—"I did not see any money at the time."

Did you see any money at the time?—"I did not see any money at the time."

Did you see any money at the time?—"I did not see any money at the time."

Did you tell your husband that you had paid £1000 in cash?—"No. It is not true."

Can you show me any letter or document in which you set up a legal claim on anything Colonel Dewey's in respect of the alleged agreement?—"If I had such a document I would have produced it. Everything was said and I accepted and believed that he would keep his promise to me."

Colonel Dewey is the plaintiff in the divorce of September 28, 1923, in which she said:—"I was for that's sake very angry and asked if you did you mean by saying that it was your husband that he had been asked to resign a post with a Mr. Hume, and you?—"I said that I was naturally very kind of you. I had of his repaying marriage and I thought it was only fair that he should do what was right and talk with me before he started on another marriage."

How do you know that has been given to you?—"I was provided for by my husband by his own hand. He had a sitting of his own. I did not think at the time of the money he had or where it came from. He had a beautiful hat and was living in a beautiful way."

Who did you see?—"I do not wish to say you or anyone." Lady Carmarvon.—What had she done to do with it?—"I did not want to say anything about it but I was very kind to me."

Why did not you say in that letter?—"You suggested me in that letter when we got the divorce. I did not put the money you would support me. I am thought of how one should write a letter there would not be any more money there." (Laughter.)

Were you keeping just one check in your pocket?—"Yes, the check with the marriage took place before you had of your own. Certainly not. I asked my husband before he was married."

Did you send money to your husband's lawyer?—"Yes, I did."

Did you tell Parker on the day before the marriage that you would "put the money on"?—"I don't discuss my private affairs with my servants."

Did you a French maid called Marguerite—was Marguerite Parker in your employment for over two years?—"Yes."

Mr. Deane said that the plaintiff to consider before she married.

Commercial Remarks.

Mr. John Hume-Williams.—I suggest that you tell your husband everything that you think he should know?

Look at that letter dated June 2, 1922, and read it carefully to yourself. Do you say in the letter of that date that you did not tell your husband your own private and private affairs?—"I only mentioned things."

Is not what you tell your husband in that letter the most private and every thing that my woman could tell anyone?—"Quite true."

Mr. Edward Marshall Hall looked the plaintiff several times and she admitted that she had written them to Marguerite.

Colonel.—You tell me, did you say to your husband that you had the marriage took place. "It is not likely." They are going to marry to-day, and now I can see the letter of it. Certainly not. I should never see such an expenditure as "put the money on."

Did you tell her that you had been writing and they were married?—"No."

At the time when you were selecting letters you of a box, and saying how dreadful it was to see such things, but you wanted money badly?—"No. Parker is a very extraordinary woman and I don't even see if she produces her. I will tell you many things that she has done."

The witness said that these were some of the

At the time you wrote the letter containing the words "whether you mean to marry and your husband or have me an alternative that is 10000 you" you had the letter which your husband wrote to you and which have not been produced?—"Yes."

That was about the time you told Parker that your husband was going to re-marry.

Did not the words mean that you intended to bring an action at law, and that if it was not settled a trial would take place in public?

Mr. Edward Marshall Hall.—Then read message from letters which the witness had produced in Court, and referred to evidence which had been produced with evidence. He suggested that the witness had put these words because they would be likely to compel her husband to settle her claims before they came to an action at law. The witness said that she meant that if her husband would not keep his promise she would have to take steps to enforce them.

Mr. Edward Marshall Hall.—Have you the slightest doubt that up till quite recently your husband was absolutely intoxicated with you?—"He always told me that he loved me."

And have you said that he had no love and no money, and that you treated him round your finger like a piece of cotton?—"No."

Did you say that to your husband?—"No. It was your opinion of him?—"No."

"In your Law as Lawyer."

You then wrote to the defendant that he was living in the lap of luxury, that he had plenty of money of his own, that he ought to realize what he should do for you, and that you insisted on his promise being kept quickly. That letter was produced. Did you or Mr. George Lewis send it?—"I wrote it and Mr. L. was the only one."

Was that a threat to your husband that you would bring an action unless your claim was settled?—"It was a threat that I would take steps to enforce his promise."

You said that he was living in the lap of luxury. Do you suggest he put the money from any other source except from Lady Carmarvon?—"I haven't the slightest idea where he got the money from."

You are claiming £12,000 for my the way, and also for a gratuity for your husband made about April, 1923, that he would support you which he was able to do so. How much per annum do you say you ought to receive?—"I never mentioned any sum."

Did you say anything about his promise, which is 2000, being the basis of what he should pay?—"I mentioned the position, but not in figures."

Did you say that because he had promised a rich woman he ought to support you?—"I did not say it that way."

Did he say anything about his promise and what he received from Lady Carmarvon?—"I did not know what he had. I only knew how and when he was living."

You know that he was nearly starving hungry for most Lady Carmarvon?—"I have to admit she is in my debt, which I always did."

I suggest that at the time you say you intended from making it plain that although he was promised £1000 was, but I was always trying to get employment for him.

Did you had anything in the letter which supported your claim to the money you are asking for in the alleged agreement?—"They show what I have done for him, and he wants to do what he could for me when he was able to."

They make very unpleasant reading to your husband. What do she mean why they were produced?—"No."

Mr. Edward Marshall Hall then said

Mr. Deane said:—"Don't you tell her that you have been already his house." Mr. Deane.—I think that is: The Court then adjourned.

Adjourned.—Messrs. Lewis and S.

the general go along?—I took a mild-mannered position with her.

Your husband made all the arrangements for the trip?—Yes.

Was there anything else spoken of General Cassin's living quarters of a man with two floors as "F." had where things that also not mentioned to Cassin?—"F." owned a yacht, and where Cassin in the yacht went to see her husband, packed a stack of paper over the yacht's name when he forwarded the letter to her.

Did you have an interview with your husband at Paris?—Yes.

Was anything said about where he wanted to live?—He said that he would never come back to England, but that he would live in France.

Was anything said about whether you were going to live together later?—Cassin had been writing more recently. We had been meeting him and had a talk about it.

The attention of the witness was drawn to certain parts of the statement of Cassin. She said that she had received news of Cassin on behalf of her husband in the amount of $125,000, including $100 for a letter and a subscription to "White Star." The gift was paid in cash. She produced the receipt. During this and that she referred to her husband various other sums amounting to $125,000.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—In April, 1912, were you in Paris?—I was frequently in Paris in 1912.

Did you have an interview with your husband after his death?—I always saw my husband when I was in Paris.

Did you speak to him about the future?—I told him that I was unhappy and that I had very little money. I had already begun to do little bits of work—writing articles and suchlike.

Did you receive a letter from Mr. John Thomas Cassin after you an interview?—No, he helped me in the house, but he gave me no assistance of any kind.

How did you live?—I had some money from my husband. Every month he gave me part of his pay and his apartment costs. That is why, in 1912, everything began very much harder. I had a little money of my own.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—How much of your own?—About $200 a year. I had $25 of that going to the interest on the $1,000 loan which I had got for my husband.

What were you looking at that time by the window?—A few pounds.

Asked further about Mr. John Thomas, Mrs. Deane said that there was no definite arrangement between them about an interview, she had nothing that she could rely on.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—Did he have the signature of the man?—After 1912, yes, she helped me occasionally more.

Had your attention for the general increased?—I was devoted to him. He was a very charming man and a wonderful personality.

Referring to the letter in which her husband said, "It is not the best you can get, but you will have it," Mrs. Deane said that Colonel Cassin was talking the same for all that had happened.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—Had you had any conversation to that effect while you were in Paris?—I must have discussed it with him.

PRIVATE INTERVIEW.

Later, contacted the witness, she told her husband that, as they were so unhappy, and as someone was willing to meet her, it would be better if they were divorced, she suggested.

She said: "All right," and thanked him. She was very grateful for the $200. A week later she found at her feet an envelope containing $100 in notes and addressed to "Mrs. Helen Williams," in Colonel Cassin's writing. When she saw the letter she thanked him for the money. He said that she must look on it as something towards the money which he owed her on the old bills and the old loans.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—Did you see the first bill of 1912 there was paid into Colonel Cassin's account $1,275, and on the second bill of that year $25,000.

Mrs. Deane said that after she had written to her husband asking him to telephone to her and had received no reply in October, 1912, she wrote to him and told that she had just only $125 a year, and would not live in England as it, that she had just her two last francs through him, and that she could not do anything any longer. She said that she had always been loyal to him and Lady Cassin, and that she would never forget the letter's kindness to her.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—Did he telephone to you in your second time?—No.

The witness said that she received a letter from Colonel Cassin in which he told her that further communications would have to be through the solicitors. The money she saw her husband and said: "After all you write that very kind letter to me? I did not mean it." He said: "No, I did not mean it at all. I was made to write it to you." She said: "Then you don't mean to let me down and let you do things to keep your promise to me?" He said: "Yes, I do."

Was Miss Helen Williams?—Did he telephone January 1 and January 20, 1912, Colonel Cassin had paid to the credit of his account $125,000.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—That was after his marriage.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—What does that matter? On January 20 there appeared $125,000 in the account which Colonel Cassin drew out after the wife was served on him.

Mrs. Deane said that she herself signed the check which she had borrowed for the defendant. The interest had been deducted from the income which came to her.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—That was after his marriage.

The plaintiff was cross-examined by Sir Edward Marshall Hall. She said that she had heard the terms in which Sir John Thomas Williams referred to her late husband in his meeting speech.

Was Miss Helen Williams?—Did you hear the charge that he had forfeited the right to be called a gentleman and that he was a man who had lived on your husband's money?—I heard what Sir John Thomas Williams said.

Do you object to it?—I think that that is an unfair question to ask me.

How much do you think that a woman who loved her husband would pay to avoid having such a cross-examination?—It is a great deal harder for me than for my husband. I am a woman and alone.

About?—I am not married and I have no one to protect me.

In that case?—Absolutely and entirely true.

If the woman who has married your husband in a state where a very rich woman possibly how much would she be prepared to pay to prevent a name being opened with the world?—I have never thought of it at all.

Had you been to live how much would you have paid?—If the man really cared for the daughter, Lady Evelyn, and she saw him there. She afterwards went to see the George Lewis.

Was Edward Marshall Hall?—Did you tell Sir George Lewis that you had a claim against your husband, on an agreement to support you in case of your remaining to sell her money?—I told Sir George Lewis the exact circumstances. I had had with my husband.

What did you mean by saying "I cannot touch or get hold of your capital"?—That is a mistake. It must be "my capital."

Answered Frankness.

"I cannot even touch the man I would like to touch you." Who is that?

The plaintiff asked her whether whether she had mentioned the name, which was that of a great friend.

Answered that she would not press for the name then.

Mrs. Deane said that the man to question happened to be a great friend of the late Lord Cassin's son, and she did not like to name him as a very long friendship.

Was Edward Marshall Hall?—Had you been on the most intimate terms with that man before February, 1911, and February, 1914?—I had not.

Was not he passed the night constantly in your bed?—No, he was not.

The plaintiff asked that she supposed he had been there four or five times. He had stayed there when he was extremely ill.

Answered—Were Parker and White in your employment during that period?—Parker was there at work.

Do you remember Dick, the chauffeur?—Yes.

Do you suggest that you are not telling the truth?—I know that you would have witnesses for all those propositions, but I have only told you what is the truth.

The next you have mentioned in the case you could have sworn that for your husband?—I do not wish to come between two very long friendships.

Was Lord Cassin?—Between whom? I do not understand.

Was Edward Marshall Hall?—"F." was a friend you had met at the late Lord Cassin's house and he was now a friend of the present Lord Cassin?

The plaintiff: I hardly know how to put it, but Lord Cassin naturally would not want his best friend to marry the ex-wife of a man who probably, to all intents and purposes, was going to murder his mother and in whom he was at the time very much interested.

Mrs. Deane said that she had not seen Lord Cassin since last year when they had talked together while he was in bed, but not seen in England. She was devoted to Lady Cassin and wrote to her husband in the autumn of 1912 that she had loved him.

Was Edward Marshall Hall?—Was that a true statement of your feelings towards Lady Cassin?—Absolutely true. I have never had an angry word from Lady Cassin.

The plaintiff said that when Lady Cassin would not to want to marry her she begged her husband to try to get her to see her.

Was Edward Marshall Hall?—Did you see in April, 1912, do you go to do you not suggest that there was any intimacy between Colonel Cassin and Lady Cassin before the death of Lord Cassin?

Was Miss Helen Williams?—I object.

Was Edward Marshall Hall?—Do you do not not suggest that Colonel Cassin's daughter, Lady Evelyn, and she saw him there. She afterwards went to see the George Lewis.

Under the Settled Land Act (1925) (SLA), any attempt to create successive interests in land resulted in the creation of a settlement trust governed by the provisions of that Act. An SLA settlement also resulted by operation of law when property was conveyed to an infant. This remained the case until TOLATA came into force in 1997, although existing 1925-style settlements continue to be governed by the 1925 rules.

The prototypical SLA settlement was created by the execution of two documents: a vesting deed, that conveyed the title to the land to the tenant for life, and a trust instrument that defined the operation of the trust and the powers of the trustees. The tenant for life usually occupied the land and held the legal title on behalf of the anticipated successors. This arrangement represents a rather unusual trust - the legal title is not held by the trustees, but by a person who is, in effect, one of the beneficiaries. Of course, there is nothing to stop the trustees and beneficiaries of a trust being the same people: almost all domestic property that is jointly owned will declare the owners to hold on trust for each other. What is odd about the SLA settlement is that there are 'trustees of the settlement' who have the fiduciary obligations of trustees, but in general do not hold the legal title. This arrangement makes sense when you consider that most settlements would be created by Will: for example: "My house in East Dogpatch I leave to my wife for life, then to our children absolutely". The tenant for life - the wife in this case - acquires legal title by inheritance; no vesting deed would be necessary in this case. In addition, identifying the life tenant as the legal owner makes it easier for the estate to be sold, if necessary. A prospective purchaser can negotiate freely with the life tenant, who generally happens to be in occupation.

In an SLA settlement, the tenant for life has wide powers. These powers include a power to sell the land, and to grant leases (with certain limitations). These powers are not unlimited, however, and some management decisions could not be made by the tenant for life except with the agreement of the trustees. In addition, the tenant for life can not accept the purchase money of a sale. For overreaching to apply, the money must be paid to the trustees of the settlement, despite the fact that they hold no interest in the property. The trustees exercise general supervisory duties over the trust, and these will be important if the life tenant abuses his powers. Although the life tenant is not a trustee, he or she is obliged to deal with the land in such a way as to protect the interests of all the beneficiaries.

The SLA settlement is a complicated legal device, and expensive to administer. For example, the settlement does not automatically come to an end even when the last person with an interest comes into possession. It requires the execution of a deed by the trustees to free the new owner from the trust. Moreover, whenever a tenant for life died, the legal title would not pass automatically to the next person entitled, but required further deeds. It was therefore unfortunate that an SLA settlement was deemed to be created in many circumstances where a trust was declared over land, against the intentions of the settlor and the interests of the beneficiaries, and could even be created accidentally. As a result, there arose the equitable device of the 'trust for sale', a piece of sleight-of-hand which avoided the SLA. TOLATA abolishes both trusts for sale and SLA settlements, and replaces them with one unified trust of land.

under or by virtue of the settlement.

(5) Where --

(a) a settlement creates an entailed interest which is incapable of being barred or defeated, or a base or determinable fee, whether or not the reversion or right of reverter is in the Crown, or any corresponding interest in leasehold land; or

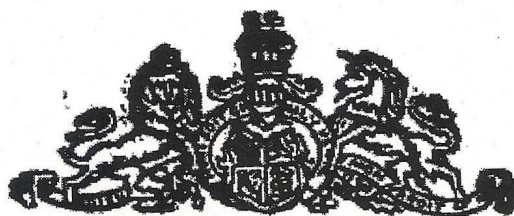

(b) the subject of a settlement is an entailed interest, or a base or determinable fee, whether or not the reversion or right of reverter is in the Crown, or any corresponding interest in leasehold land;

the reversion or right of reverter upon the cesser of the interest so created or settled shall be deemed to be an interest comprised in the subject of the settlement, and limited by the settlement.

(7) This section does not apply to land held upon trust for sale.

SIR FRANCIS LAMBART.

Sir Francis Lambart, who had been secretary of the Order of St. Patrick since 1887, having succeeded his father in that office, died yesterday at the age of 78.

Gustavus Francis William Lambart was born on March 25, 1848, the eldest son of Mr. G. W. Lambart, of Beau Parc, Co. Meath. This family descends from the younger son of the first Earl of Cavan, the Hon. Oliver Lambart; he and his son, grandson, great-grandson, and great-great-grandson were successively members for Kilbeggan between the year 1861 and the Act of Union. Sir Francis was formerly major and honorary lieutenant-colonel, 5th Battalion, the Leinster Regiment. His father was State Steward to the Lord Lieutenant, and his connexion with the Vice-regal Court began with his appointment as page to the Earl of Eglinton, who was Viceroy in 1858. He was Chamberlain to the Duke of Marlborough, Viceroy from 1876 to 1880; Gentleman-in-Waiting to the Earl of Carnarvon, Viceroy in 1885-6; and Comptroller and Chamberlain to the Earl of Dudley, Viceroy from 1902 to 1905. He was High Sheriff of Co. Meath in 1901, was made C.V.O. in 1903, and was created a baronet in 1911. Sir Francis married, in 1911, Kathleen Barbara Sophia, daughter of Colonel John Arthur Moore-Brabazon, of Tara Hall, Meath, and sister of Colonel Moore-Brabazon, M.P. She survives him with one son, Oliver Francis, born in 1913, who succeeds to the baronetcy. Two of Sir Francis's sisters were Maids of Honour to Queen Victoria, and another was in the household of the Duchess of Albany.

The story is set out with plenty of imaginative detail in Hasted's old "History of Kent." It is interesting to quote the following remark from the particulars of sale:—

After a lapse of some twelve hundred years we visit this spot with feelings of reverence.

The extract is from an account of Minster, compiled by a former Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries, who would seem by his remark to have been singularly qualified to talk about ancient survivals. After this and other quotations; the agents, saying "To return to more prosaic particulars," describe the house and gardens, the monastic fishponds, and the manorial barn, a specimen of old timbering. Minerals below 400ft. are reserved to the vendors, and the title begins with a resettlement in 1879 of the Conyngham estates in Ireland and Minster, without reference to Bitons, the seat near Canterbury.

Some of the best research into the history of Minster Abbey was made by Lewis, whose old "History of Tenet" indicates the results of observations in a dry season to trace on the pastures the outline of the monastic premises. Norman work can be seen in the structure, and in the garden is a tower which incorporates a Norman carving of St. Augustine blessing the "Angles." The existing house, on an L-shaped plan, is a well proportioned building of flint, with worked stone dressings and mullioned windows, and the doorway is in keeping with what was evidently at one time the administrative centre of Thanet. QUIET HOUSES.

THE NEW GEORGIAN.

Holland Park occupies much of the space between the westward continuation of Bayswater-road (known as Holland Park-avenue) and Kensington-road, the extension of the High-street. Just south of Holland Park, out of Melbury-road, "that quiet abode of artists," is a new group of residences of such importance architecturally and in other ways as to have been the subject of a view in the Picture Page of The Times recently.

The historic associations of the spot and its beauty and quietude have been respected by the building in that part of old Kensington of Georgian houses, designed by Mr. Leonard Martin, F.R.I.B.A., the work being done by the Mayfair Construction Company. Messrs. King and King (Brompton-road) are the agents, and they have an office in the new settlement, which is named Ilchester-place. Plans, pictures, and a simple description, free from exaggeration, have been prepared.

In addition to the usual points, attention has been paid to making the houses soundproof, the party-walls having been lined with a substance which "has been largely used to soundproof the walls of practice rooms in academies of music and similar buildings." The desirability of this is evident, and the feature will be envied by many residents in the ordinary type of detached or terrace house, where "music," of doubtful quality and invariably disturbing, and some sounds which are not at all melodious, are apt to penetrate from house to house. As the descriptive pamphlets may be had on application to Messrs. King and King there is no need to go into details, and it is enough to say that for such properties the terms are moderate

HUNTING BOXES.

THE KENT COAST.

Colonel A. M. B. Gage would probably consider an offer of about £12,000 for the Leicestershire hunting-box, Sludge Hall, Melton Mowbray, and 126 acres. Views of Charnwood Forest may be had from the house, which stands 500ft. above sea level, in the centre of the Quorn, and handy for meets of the Cottessmore and Fernie's. A large sum was recently spent in improving the house. The agents are Messrs. John D. Wood and Co. (Mount-street). Stabling for more than 20 horses, garages for six cars, and quarters for the staff, exist just beyond the beautiful gardens. The firm has to sell Frensham Manor, 100 acres, near Farnham; and Springfield, 35 acres, at Oakham, another house in a hunting country.

Brockham Park, 142 acres, four miles from Dorking, is offered by Messrs. Lofts and Warner (Mount-street). The estate is near the golf course at Betchworth.

An "upset" price of £3,500 is fixed for Nashleigh House, Chesham, to be offered by Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley, at Hanover-square on September 20. The 31 acres have long road frontages. Ruberslaw, Virginia Water, a modern house and nearly three acres, surrounded by the Wentworth golf course, is for sale by Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley. Particulars of The Priory, a Georgian house and 34 acres at Bodmin, are ready. The auction will be held locally on September 8 for executors.

Hill House, Hythe, a Georgian residence in an acre of garden, will be sold locally on August 24 by Mr. Alfred J. Burrows (Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley). It is a large house, high on the hill behind the brewery and post office, with approaches from Malthouse-hill and Hillside-street. Although the illustrated particulars do not say so, Hill House might be successfully adapted to the use of some cooperative holiday organization. There is ample room, on the ground now

NEUMANN'S DIARIES.

SOCIETY A CENTURY AGO.

THE DIARY OF PHILIPP VON NEUMANN.

Edited by E. BERESFORD CHANCELLOR.

Two volumes. (Philip Allan, 42s. net.)

Philipp von Neumann, Austrian diplomatist, squire of dames and indefatigable diner-out, kept a diary, extracts from which have already appeared in The Times, for a period which just covers the transition from the Napoleonic to the Victorian age. He kept it because he was a methodical man who found life good and liked to recall its savour from day to day. It is primarily a record of the persons he met, generally at dinner, and its editing presented a problem which Mr. Chancellor has solved with tactful efficiency. The extracts which he has translated from the French original and has neatly linked together by summaries, present a definite picture of the small but important world in which the writer was thoroughly at home. He was evidently a clever man and thoroughly competent at his work. He carried through some delicate negotiations, both commercial and political, and was inclined to think that his services were not properly appreciated. It is certainly strange that Metternich, who knew him well and enjoyed his society, did not make a better career for him. Possibly his discretion was doubted, for Neumann had a highly susceptible heart and was over 65 when he settled down with the daughter of an English duke for wife. Judging from the diary, however, Neumann kept his activities in watertight compartments, and though he regularly notes the events of the day, showing marked ability in distinguishing truth from rumour, he never betrays a confidence.

The greater part of his service was passed in England. He came to London after the Napoleonic wars, and his position in English society was already assured when the diaries open in 1819. His long period of service in London, interrupted only by visits to the Continent and by a mission to Brazil—he crossed the ocean in a British warship and seven of the crew died on the voyage—came to an end after the Reform Bill. Later he returned

High Court Of Justice Chancery Division, Repairs And Maintenance Of Slane Castle: Income-Tax, Re Conyngham: Conyngham v. Cameron

Category: Law

Full Text: Copyright 1931, The Times

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE CHANCERY DIVISION

REPAIRS AND MAINTENANCE OF SLANE CASTLE : INCOME-TAX RE CONYNGHAM: CONYNGHAM v. CAMERON

(Before Mr. Justice Clauson)

This was an application to decide questions of law in respect of a bequest to the defendant, the Hon. Frances Elizabeth Sarah Cameron, known as Lady Conyngham (the Dowager Marchioness of Conyngham), by her son, the late Marquess, who made a will on April 11, 1915, and died in 1918.

The plaintiff, the Earl of Mount Charles, an infant five years old and the tenant in tail of the real estate in England and Ireland devised by the will, appeared by his next friend, Mr. Henry Charles Fraser.

The defendants were Lady Conyngham (the tenant for life of Slane Castle) and the present trustees of the will.

The relevant clause in the will of the late Marquess directed that his mother should be permitted to use, occupy, and enjoy Slane Castle, in the County of Meath, and the furniture and pictures, together with the demesne, and all gardens, pleasure grounds, and appurtenances, "and to receive during the same period out of the rents and income of the hereditaments and estate a sum not exceeding £3,500 per annum for the maintenance and upkeep thereof, otherwise than for repairs which are not to be included in this sum."

The question arose as to the meaning of maintenance and upkeep other than repairs, and whether Lady Conyngham could call on the trustees to pay her the whole of the £3,500 without any exact account of moneys spent on maintenance and upkeep, and to keep Slane Castle in repair at the cost of the estate. A further question was whether the trustees could deduct income-tax from the £3,500 on the ground that it was such an annual payment as was referred to in Rule 19 of the All Schedule Rules to the Income Tax Act, 1918.

In January, 1928, the Appeal Court of the Irish Free State decided that the sum of £3,500, not being for the benefit of Lady Conyngham but for the remaindermen, must be paid to her free of income-tax.

Mr. C. E. E. Jenkins, K.C., and Mr. H. F. F. Greenland appeared for the plaintiff; Sir Herbert Cunliffe, K.C., and Mr. Wilfrid M. Hunt for Lady Conyngham; and Mr. Charles Harman for the trustees.

JUDGMENT

Mr. Justice Clauson, in giving judgment, said that the duty of the trustees in the proper construction of the clause was during the life of Lady Conyngham to provide, out of the rents and income of the testator's hereditaments in England and Ireland, for the execution of such repairs of Slane Castle, together with the demesne, gardens, and pleasure grounds, as might be reasonably required for the maintenance and upkeep thereof. Lady Conyngham was also entitled to require provision to be made each year for the expense of the maintenance and upkeep other than repairs of such sums as might have been actually expended by her for the maintenance and upkeep for the year up to the maximum of £3,500.

On the question whether income-tax was payable out of the £3,500, it was said that, by rule 19 of the All Schedule Rules to the Income Tax Act, 1918, the trustees ought to apply for the maintenance and upkeep, not £3,500, but that sum less income-tax. The payment to Lady Conyngham of the sum spent by her on maintenance and upkeep was not a payment to her beneficially, but was a payment to her for the purposes marked out in the will. Therefore, rule 19 had no application to the matter in question. The Appeal Court in Southern Ireland had placed a construction on this question of income-tax which was in accordance with the conclusion which he had stated.

He would declare, accordingly, that a sum not exceeding £3,500 was not to be diminished by any deduction in respect of income-tax. The costs of all parties would be costs in the action.

THE SALE ROOM

OLD ENGLISH SILVER

Old English silver plate, the property of Lord Glentanar, Sir Edmund Chaytor, Lady Ewart, the late Sir Lewis Morris, and others, formed Christie's last sale of its kind this season.

The chief "news" sensation of the sale developed in connexion with a Charles I. plain trencher salt-cellar, among the anonymous properties, 3½in. high, 1635, and 9oz. 12dwt. in weight; from about 500s. per oz., a boy of about 12 took up the bidding till it reached and fell at 780s. per oz., or £374 8s., when the name of the buyer was revealed as Mr. Kenyon Vicars Painter, of New York, the chief under-bidder being Mr. Willson. Lord Glentanar's James I. silver-gilt rose-water ewer and dish, by F. Terry, 1618, 90oz., both elaborately chased with dolphins, Tudor roses, &c., was purchased at the Marchioness Conyngham sale in 1908 for £1,200, and now fell at £3,200 (Redcliffe). A large salver, engraved with various arms, 1748, 25in. diameter, 15½oz. at 13s., fell at £100 2s. (Knill); a silver-gilt toilet service, embossed and chased with flowers and scroll-work, by L. Herne and F. Butty, 1761, total weight of seven articles 136oz.—£250 (Crichton); Sir Edmund Chaytor's George II. plain punch-bowl, 7½in. high, 11in. diameter, by W. Darkeratt, 1729, 83½oz., sold at 82s.—£341 6s. (Green); and Sir Lewis Morris's Charles II. tankard, 6½in. high, 1676, 24oz. 2dwt., at 120s.—£144 12s. (Franks).

THANET RELICS

DEVON SPORT

The Isle of Thanet is littered with spurious antiques. It was the whim of Lord Holland, Paymaster to the Forces in the eighteenth century, to build imitations of ancient structures on a good many sites near Kingsgate Bay and Broadstairs. Time has mellowed some of them and almost obliterated others. It was a foolish idea, expressive probably of that superfluity of wealth which the paymasters enjoyed at the expense of the forces. Anything that purports to be ancient in the Isle of Thanet needs careful scrutiny. But there is no doubt of the antiquity of Minster Abbey. Messrs. George Webb and Co. (Sittingbourne) offered it in 1929, by order of the late Lord Conyngham's trustees, and now, with 12 acres, the house or Abbey is for sale by Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley (Hanover Square). The remains include those of the Norman manor house, which was renovated in the reign of Henry IV. by Thomas Hunden, an Abbot of St. Augustine's, whose initials surmount the door of the house. In the year 1700 the tithebarn, over 350ft. long, was destroyed by lightning.

Messrs. Ralph Pay and Taylor (Mount Street) offer a first-rate house and 54 acres of freehold land, between Canterbury and the coast, with three cottages, for £4,000, on behalf of executors.

Premises in Chenies Street and Ridgmount Street, Bloomsbury, for £37,000, and in Hans Crescent, for £5,000, are among recent sales by Messrs. Toplis and Harding and Russell (Old Jewry). Long lists of houses are given in a total of sales for £99,000 by Messrs. Hankinson and Son (Bournemouth), and of £51,000 by Mr. F. J. Pearson (Wimbledon).

BOGUS LORD LOSES ANNULMENT ACTION

Court Voids Marriage of Mrs.
B. D. R. Duncan to Self-Styled
Lord Charles Conyngham.

WEDDING HELD BIGAMOUS

'Peer' Said Now to Be Selling
'Cancer Remedy' in Los Angeles
—Had Crested Shirts.

An annulment of her marriage to Bertram Haldane Duncan, who has been known as Lord Charles Conyngham, Arthur C. Conyngham, the Earl of Camperdown, and other names, has been granted to Mrs. Bertha Dore Rado Duncan, of 123 West Fifty-seventh Street, it was revealed yesterday. The decree was signed by Supreme Court Justice Chester B. McLaughlin on a report by John Ford, official referee.

One of the exhibits at the trial was a white shirt bearing the crest "C. C." offered to prove that the defendant was the same man who called himself Lord Charles Conyngham. Albert S. Osborne, handwriting expert, testified that the writing of letters and other exhibits was all done by the defendant. Mrs. Duncan sued on the ground that at the time the defendant married her on Dec. 1, 1925, he was the husband of the former Virginia R. H. von Bittenfeld, whom he married in Philadelphia on July 8 of the same year, as Lord Charles Conyngham.

A newspaper clipping of Aug. 6, 1925, was offered in evidence showing that the supposed Lady Conyngham, who had been introduced by her husband under that title, had found that the defendant had no title and that his name was not Conyngham. She divorced him in San Francisco on July 17, 1928, on the ground that he had falsely represented himself to be Lord Arthur Charles Conyngham and had refused to tell her his real name. She had been the widow of a wealthy Hawaiian planter, and later of a Prussian Colonel.

Mrs. Duncan, who was living at 277 Park Avenue when she met the defendant, testified that she had not lived with him since the Spring of 1932, and had not learned of his previous marriage until last February. Her attorney put in evidence a paper written by the defendant transferring to Mrs. Duncan property of which he claimed ownership, including "approximately 400,000 acres known as the Glen Eagles estate, at Pitlochry, Scotland, on which there are eleven mortgages made by my father and his brother, the former Earl of Camperdown." He also asserted ownership of a number of oil leases, and "3,000,000 acres of land" in Texas.

Robert A. Gray, a consulting engineer, of 252 Lexington Avenue, testified that he knew Duncan when he called himself Lord Conyngham and that he knew of an investigation as to the defendant's claims to a title which had been made by Sir Harry Gloster Armstrong, former British Consul General here, which showed that the claims were bogus. Gray said that on one occasion in the defendant's room in the Commodore Hotel the latter showed him white shirts bearing the "C. C." crest, and said:

"Take these away or give them away, I don't want them around."

A number of letters written by the defendant to the plaintiff from Los Angeles last year showed that he was then selling a cancer "remedy" and "barely making a living."

"I am up against it," he wrote, "but I will work my way out of it. I always have."

Mrs. Duncan testified that her husband never supported her, but, on the contrary, "spent her money freely."

Obituary

THE DOWAGER LADY LINLITHGOW

MOTHER OF THE VICEROY OF INDIA

The Dowager Marchioness of Linlithgow, mother of the Viceroy of India, died on Saturday afternoon in a nursing home at Lausanne. She had been critically ill for several days, and in his anxiety for his mother's health the Viceroy cancelled his reception to members of the Indian Legislature which was to have been held on Friday.

The third daughter of the fourth Lord Ventry, she was, before her marriage, the Hon. Hersey Alice Eveleigh-de-Moleyns. On October 18, 1886, she married the seventh Earl of Hopetoun, who, when a boy of 12 at Eton, nearly 14 years earlier, had succeeded his father in the peerage. At the time of her marriage her husband was on the threshold of his brilliant public career, and during all the years that followed she played an important part in the success that was to be his. As the wife of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Victoria from 1889 to 1895, and from 1900 to 1902 of the first Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief of the newly formed Commonwealth of Australia, she proved herself to be possessed of the dignity, tact, and charm of personality which made her ideally fitted to take her place by her husband's side in his great offices. In recognition of his services Lord Hopetoun was created Marquess of Linlithgow in October, 1902.

The late dowager Marchioness had four children, two sons and two daughters. Her elder son is the present Viceroy of India; the younger son, Captain Lord Charles Hope, formerly in The Life Guards, is the well-known lawn tennis player and golfer; the elder daughter died in infancy; and the younger daughter, now Lady Mary Herbert, a Lady-in-Waiting to the Duchess of Kent, was married last July to Lord Herbert, eldest son of the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, and an equerry to the Duke of Kent. The Duke of Kent was best man. The ceremony took place in Westminster Abbey, and Queen Mary sent a wedding gift inscribed "to dear Mary, with best wishes from Mary R." The late

LORD LONDESBOROUGH

SOLDIER AND SPORTSMAN

The Earl of Londesborough, who had been lying ill with pneumonia in a London nursing home, died on Saturday morning at the age of 42. His death was unexpected as there had been reassuring reports of his condition.

The Right Hon. Hugo William Cecil, fourth Earl of Londesborough, Viscount Raincliffe, of Raincliffe, in the North Riding county of York, and Baron Londesborough, of Londesborough, was born on November 13, 1894. The family obtained the surname of Denison from the first peer, Lord Albert Conyngham, second son of the first Marquess Conyngham, who changed his name from Conyngham to Denison on succeeding to the great property of his uncle, Mr. Joseph Denison, of Denbies, Surrey. Lord Albert Denison was raised to the peerage as Baron Londesborough in 1850. His son, the second peer, obtained the earldom, and the viscounty in 1887. On the death of the fourth earl, the earldom and viscounty became extinct, as since 1920, when the late peer succeeded his brother, a cousin, Captain Ernest William Denison, R.N., born in 1876, has been heir presumptive to the barony only, his father having been Rear-Admiral the Hon. Albert Denison, second son of the first baron, and brother of the first earl.

The late peer was the second son of the second earl. His mother, who died in 1933, was Lady Grace Fane, eldest daughter of the 12th Earl of Westmorland. Lord Londesborough was educated at Wellington and served in the War from 1914 in the Household Cavalry, and was wounded three times. He had the 1914 Star, and the British War and Victory medals. At the time of his death he was captain, 1st Life Guards, Reserve of Officers. He was hereditary Vice-Admiral of the Yorkshire coast, and patron of several livings. His country seat was Blankney Hall, Lincoln. A keen rider to hounds, he became, with Miss Marigold Rosemary Joyce Lubbock, Joint Master of the Blankney Hounds in 1933. Two years later Lord Londesborough and Miss Lubbock (the youngest daughter of the late Mr. Edgar Lubbock and Lady Kesteven) were married at Blankney Church, near Lincoln, and after their marriage they continued as Captain the Hon. Henry Denison, late Royal Horse Artillery, third son of the first Lord Londesborough, died at 47, Park Street, W., on Thursday at the age of 86.

PRINCESS LIEVEN'S LETTERS

GEORGE IV AT HOME

THE PRIVATE LETTERS OF PRINCESS LIEVEN TO PRINCE METTERNICH. Edited by PETER QUENNELL. John Murray. 18s.

Princess Lieven would have been remarkable in any age on account of the facility with which she gave her mind to the understanding of high politics and the shrewd generosity with which she gave her heart to only the most eminent politicians. In the nineteenth century her fame was prodigious. These letters, which cover the years from 1820 to 1826, are all written to Metternich when she was in love with him. They give as vivid and as detailed a picture of George IV's Court and of English society during his reign as we possess. She wrote to Metternich with an outspokenness which betrays her real feelings but which few English people would have cared or dared to employ. Of Queen Victoria's parents she wrote:—

No one in England will mourn the Duke. He was false, hard, and greedy. His so-called good qualities were only for show. His wife kills all her husbands . . . she is the most mediocre person it would be possible to meet. Her description of George IV's last mistress, Lady Conyngham, is equally blistering: "Not an idea in her head; not a word to say for herself; nothing but a hand to accept pearls and diamonds with, and an enormous balcony to wear them on." We can hardly fail to feel grateful to the Princess for rescuing from oblivion the Duke of Wellington's remark after a brief visit to his sovereign amid the exotic luxuries of the Pavilion: "Devil take me, I think I must have got into bad company." Here and there, but rather too rarely, the Princess reveals something of the brilliance and charm

THE DUKE OF NORFOLK'S SILVER

Candlesticks ranging from the Queen Anne period to the first quarter of the nineteenth century are the chief feature of the collection of silver belonging to the Duke of Norfolk which Christie's are selling on February 10. There are more than 100 candlesticks in the catalogue, many of them being by well-known makers such as Paul de Lamerie, Lewis Mettayer, and Benjamin Pyne.

By the last named is a very fine set of six with octagonal bases and octagonal pear-shaped baluster stems engraved with the Brotherton crest. There are three pairs of the same period which are believed to bear the mark of Lewis Mettayer, while by that great craftsman Paul de Lamerie are a pair with square-shaped bases decorated with shell and foliage ornament at the corners, and with faceted baluster stems. There is a set of eight with shaped and moulded square bases and fluted baluster stems by Edward Feline, 1738.

On the same day a large quantity of silver which belonged to the late Marquess Conyngham will also be sold. Much of it is of a heavy character, notably 65 dinner plates of a combined weight of nearly 900oz. Some choice smaller pieces include several Charles II and Queen Anne tankards, and a charming set of three silver tea vases, the work of Nicholas Sprimont, 1744, proprietor of the Chelsea porcelain factory.

THE SALE ROOM

THE DUKE OF NORFOLK'S SILVER

To a day's total of £5,500 for old English silver, the property of the Duke of Norfolk contributed £2,866 at Christie's rooms yesterday. The Duke of Norfolk's collection included more than 140 candlesticks of various periods, and three of them produced the chief prices in the sale.

There was keen bidding for a Queen Anne set of six with octagonal stems, 7in. high, by Benjamin Pyne, which made £311 10s. 5d., at 66s. an oz. (Crichton). A set of four similar but smaller ones, 6in. high, by the same maker, realized £198 13s. 6d., at 90s. an oz. (S. J. Phillips), and the same purchasers gave £232 9s. 5d. (82s. an oz.) for a George I set of four by Ambrose Stevenson. Another set of four by this maker made £125 18s. 6d., at 46s. an oz. (Willson).

A set of eight candlesticks by Edward Feline (1738) made £153 2s. 10d., at 28s. an oz. (Neale), and a massive set of four table candlesticks and three candelabra by Nathan Smith (1808 and 1817), a pair of candelabra by the same (1808 and 1809), and another by Smith Tate and Co. made together £175 (Devereux).

LORD CONYNGHAM'S COLLECTION

The dispersal of the Norfolk silver was preceded by some 82 lots, the property of the late Lord Conyngham, which produced a total of £2,640. The collection included a large number of dinner plates and meat dishes, which in spite of their weight sold particularly well. Seventeen circular dinner plates by Samuel Courtauld (1751) made £131 19s. 4d., at 8s. 11d. an oz. (Bloom), and 18 others, by various makers, went for £120 18s. 9d., at 7s. 6d. an oz. (Plugg). Seven oval meat dishes by Peter Archambo and Peter Meure fell to Mr. Neale at £126 10s. 6d., at 10s. an oz., and the same purchaser gave £123 15s. (9s. an oz.) for seven similar dishes.

A Charles II plain cylindrical tankard and cover (1683) went for £121 10s. 9d. (105s. an oz.) (Lumley), and a large silver inkstand modelled as the Round Tower of Windsor Castle by Hamlet (1823), probably made for the first Marquess Conyngham, Constable of Windsor Castle from 1821 to 1830, sold for £150 (Hyam).

BIG ART SALE IN AMSTERDAM

MENSING COLLECTION TO BE BROKEN UP

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 11

The art collection of the late Mr. Antoon W. M. Mensing, who for over 50 years conducted the art sales of Frederik Muller and Co. in Amsterdam and did more than anyone to make this city a European art market, is being broken up. Some of the more precious pictures are being retained by his family, but more than 100 are being offered for sale by auction by Mr. Mensing's own firm (of which his son is now the head) next Tuesday.

The catalogue includes the magnificent "Portrait of Maarten Looten," painted by Rembrandt in January, 1632, when he was 25, one of his finest and best-known works. It has been in the Conyngham and Holford collections in London, and has been exhibited at Burlington House three times, the last being at the Winter Exhibition of Dutch Art in 1929.

Second only to this in fame is Jan Steen's large painting of "Antony and Cleopatra," for the central figure of which his sister was his model. This painting was also exhibited at the Royal Academy Exhibition of Dutch Art, having previously, between 1821 and 1870, been in the hands of a number of English collectors.

A small study by Jerome Bosch of "The Doctors listening to Jesus in the Temple" has all the rich colouring and sensitive expression of this artist's best-known works, but none of the eccentricity of imagination of most of them. It would appear to be the right-hand portion of the original picture representing "Christ in the Midst of the Doctors," of which there are early copies in the Louvre and the Johnson Collection in Philadelphia.

Jan Brueghel le Velours is represented by four landscapes, Gonzales Coques by a self-portrait formerly in the Bischoffsheim collection and by a family portrait, Jan van Goyen by two landscapes, and Dirk Hals (brother of Frans) by a well-known oval, "Game of Trick-track." There is a small Teniers "Interior of an Inn," a Terborch "Portrait of a Gentleman," two fine panoramic views by Aert van der Neer, and a remarkable "Baptism of Christ" by the sixteenth-century
