descriptive of the seasons, on that interesting public walk: this is as it should be—it is at once giving a proof of the growing public taste for the fine arts, and introducing into notice the classical effort of a native and aspiring artist.

In the House of Commons on Friday night a Bill "to amend an Act of the first and second years of his present Majesty, for preventing depredations within the jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports, for the adjustment of Salvage, and for giving further powers to the Deputy Warden of the Cinque Ports, and Lieutenant of Dover Castle," was presented, and read a first time; to be read a second time on Monday, and to be printed.

The annual contest, to decide the two sums of £10. to the fastest lad and lass, was decided yesterday on Old Wives Lees. The first race was for the £10. for the men, and decided in favour of John Hodges, of Ashford, who beat his opponent, James Allen, of Barham, one yard. The next race between the lasses was well contested; when Ann Mummery was declared the winner, she beating Rebecca Cork one rod.

There is now in the parish of Chartham a snipe with three young ones.

On Tuesday night a person who had been committed to the town prison, Maidstone, for further examination on Wednesday, charged with a burglary in the dwelling house of Mr. Reeves at Benenden, made his escape from that place by breaking through a brick wall, and has not since been heard of.

On Friday night last, the Mill of Mr. Wm. Parton, of New Romney, was broken open, and about eight bushels of flour stolen therefrom, together with some beans and barley. The thieves took out part of a window frame to let themselves in, and with their booty have yet escaped detection.

On Saturday last, the 17th instant, Davis Andrews was fully committed for trial at the ensuing assizes for Kent, by F. W. Mulcaster, esq. charged with breaking and entering the cottage of William Saunders, a poor man, in the parish of Herne, no person being therein, on Thursday, the 15th inst. and stealing therefrom a quantity of wearing apparel, a loaf of bread, and a hand of pork. The prisoner was traced to Whitstable, and there apprehended, with the property in his possession. Part of the wearing apparel stolen, being the property of Thomas Saunders, the son of the Prosecutor; the Magistrate committed him on that charge also.

On Tuesday afternoon, as some workmen were employed at the outer extremity of the Chain Pier, Brighton, a pitch-kettle accidentally boiled over, and the contents instantly ignited. At first considerable apprehensions were felt by the spectators for the safety of that elegant structure, but we are happy to state that the danger proved but momentary, the fire being immediately extinguished, by throwing the flaming utensil into the sea.—We hear that one man had his face and hands much scorched.

ACCIDENT AT BRIDGE HILL.—On Friday last a serious accident happened to a poor man named Nott, who was employed on the improvements making at Bridge Hill, by a quantity of chalk, which he was undermining, falling upon him. The unfortunate man was speedily extricated by his fellow workmen, and brought to the Kent and Canterbury Hospital, where he now lies in a dangerous state.

ROBBERY ON THE RIVER THAMES.—Two men named Skeffer and Austin, belonging to a vessel trading to Whitstable, were charged last week at Thames Police Office, with having plundered certain property belonging to Trueman, Hanbury, and Buxton, the brewers, which had been shipped on board the Two Sisters, and which was entrusted to their care. From the statement of Blythe, a constable, it appeared that on that morning, between the hours of two and three, while patrolling the River, he perceived a light under the bows of the Two Sisters, which attracting his attention, he watched attentively, and saw the prisoner Austin, handing a can down the hold, and the hatches open.—Shortly afterwards Austin took up a ladder which was lying on the deck, and fastened the can, and on his disappearing, he (Blythe) and another Officer, boarded the barge, and ascertained that two porter native of this town and one of the most rising and promising young men of talent that the present age can boast of.

I cannot omit this opportunity, when I am surrounded by my brother masons, of noticing the ridiculous and absurd opinions which were once bandied about as to masonry; but I will tell the public one secret: a good mason must be a good man, both morally and politically. Our gracious King and his royal brothers are masons. The Duke of Clarence and his Majesty being both of more than forty years standing. This at least proves beyond a question masonic honesty and orthodoxy as to political views; and I would go the length of saying, with reference to private character, that as far I know, freemasons were generally quite as good as their neighbours, and I could quote for my purpose the late Master of the Thanet Lodge, Dr. Hunter,—the late Master of 207, Mr. Salter, and the present Master, Mr. Hoffman.

In returning to the subject of improvements, I sincerely hope it will never be checked here, but that at all times every encouragement will be given by individuals towards supporting and forwarding the acts of the public bodies here; and, on the other hand, that the public bodies (as far as they reasonably and fairly can) will aid and encourage individual efforts and improvements amongst the inhabitants; for be assured that the inward pleasure of so doing will be to a public minded man beyond description, and to the community it cannot fail of producing a lasting benefit; besides which, in point of personal advantage, it generally produces a far greater profit than five per cent.; so that, although trouble might attend the project, it would amply compensate the parties: and last of all I would say of the cold calculating miser, who grasping at a visible per centage, is utterly ignorant of the greater per centage, which would flow through invisible channels, but which his blindness of understanding cannot comprehend.—What must be his feelings in his last moments, when, having worshipped his golden calf and lived only for himself, he separates from a pelf which in life he could only misuse and in death lament.

The Master then put into the stone an inscription on copper together with the coins of the present year, and having adroitly used the trowel and applied the symmetrical level and plumb, he gave three blows with a hammer and said—

"May the Almighty Architect of the Universe bless the foundation stone, and by his providence enable us to finish this and every work intended for the good of this Town and Harbour; and may the light intended to be here placed be the means of saving many of our fellow creatures from an untimely death, and guide the mariner into shelter from an overwhelming storm."

Some of the Officers of the Lodge then brought corn and wine and oil to the Master, in beautiful silver flaggons, which being put by him on the stone—he then added—

"May the all-bountiful Creator plenteously give to the inhabitants of this town corn, wine and oil, and may they be blessed with every convenience and comfort of life"

The procession then returned, and a very large party dined together at the York Hotel, and the evening was spent in the cheerful manner which is so frequent and well known in this place.

DOVER, MAY 19.

On Saturday, whilst two of Mr. Fuller's men were on a scaffold erecting a dwelling, the ledger which support scaffold boards gave way, by which two men were precipitated to the ground, a height of 30 feet—one of them, named Griffiths, was severely hurt and obliged to be carried home, the other sustained no material injury, his fall having been broken by a projection, to which he clung.

Another haul of mackarel, amounting to 700, was made by a seine on Saturday, near the Marine Parade.

Deal, May 16.—Came down from the River and proceeded, the Royal George, Wilson for Bombay; Mary Ann, Adams, and Isabella, Price, for Dominica; Zephyr, Hockur, for Malta; Courier, Heather, for Belfast; Electra, Baker, for New York; Demerara Packet, Cooke, and Rawlins, Marr, for Jamaica.

We have pleasure in stating that the late Joseph Stewart, esq. of Sandwich, left a legacy of £100. to the Kent and Canterbury Hospital, and the Sandwich Charity-Schools respectively, and that the same has been paid by Mrs. Stewart, his Executrix, after deducting the duty thereon.

The Swedish galliot Agnes, from the Mediterranean to Gottenburgh, ran ashore at Dungeness in the night of the 20th instant.

We have heard that a powder mill in the neighbourhood of Tunbridge was on Tuesday last blown up, whereby four labouring men have lost their lives.

Last week as some workmen were pulling-down a decayed building in Deal, they discovered a small box secreted in the chimney, which contained 2,000 French Assignats of five livres each; they are supposed to have been fabricated in England, and are dated 27th June 17[illegible]2.

On Saturday night last some person or persons broke open the barn of Mr. Thomas Elvey, of Newnham, and stole a sack of beans and two bushels of wheat.—The thieves were traced by foot marks to the residence of three suspicious characters, but nothing could be found to warrant their apprehension.

Richard Weston was on Wednesday fully committed to Westgate Gaol, by William Homersham, esq. (Mayor) for burglariously entering the dwelling house of Isaac Newton, and stealing one hundred sovereigns. Richard Carter was also committed by the Mayor on Tuesday, for an assault on Wm. Wellard, keeper of his Majesty's Gaol of this city, when in the execution of his office.

A most distressing accident occurred at Rochester on Wednesday, whereby two respectable families at Maidstone are plunged in the deepest affliction. Mr. Horace Bensted, aged 22 years, son of Mr. Joseph Bensted, wharfinger, accompanied by a youth aged 16, named Abel Haywood, son of Mrs. Haywood, a widow, had been to Chatham and purchased a pleasure sailing boat, with which they were about to return by the course of the Medway,—arriving at Wickham Reach, which is about a mile from Rochester, a sudden squall upset the boat.—Bensted, being an expert swimmer, had nearly reached the shore, when looking back for his companion he observed him in distress, upon which he returned to his assistance, and, shocking to relate, in his laudable intention he perished with his friend. The accident was observed from some lime kilns near, and a boat was with promptitude put off, but the river being very wide at the part, it did not reach the place in time to afford assistance. The bodies are found and an inquest has been holden before — Patten, esq. Coroner, at Rochester, and returned a verdict of "Accidentally drowned, with a deodand of 1s. on the boat."

Ringing.—On Saturday last the peal of 720 changes was rung by the Borden Youths, on the bells of St. Mary Church, Sittingbourn, by the following persons:—

Joseph Grinsted ..... treble	Thomas Golding ..... fourth
Thomas Gouge ..... second	Thomas Cheesmer .... fifth
Thomas Swinyard .... third	Henry Grinsted ..... tenor

The peal was conducted by Thomas Cheesmer, and rung in a masterly style—the bells having been recently hung by the celebrated —— Henry, of Chatham.

Emigration.—On Sunday last twenty-six persons left New Romney for America. They were taken with their luggage by Mr. Gibbs, Post-master, to the wharf of Messrs. Pickford and Co. London, where they arrived at half past eleven on Monday morning, and were immediately forwarded by the Canal to Liverpool for embarkation.

Interesting Discovery.—On Monday the workmen commenced the long desired undertaking of lowering the hill on the other side of Bridge, and yesterday they dug up, between two and three feet below the surface, and a short distance on this side of the three mile stone, fifteen human skulls, several leg and thigh bones, a great number of smaller bones, and three small Roman earthern vases. One of the vases is entire, another is he was better, drank a glass of wine, and left the house. Soon after, the servant went up stairs, when she missed a pair of sheets; on which Mr. Goodman set off in pursuit of him, and overtook him on the London road. On searching him, the sheets were found wrapped around his body, under his waistcoat. He was fully committed to Maidstone for trial.

CHATHAM, April 25.

Great loyalty has been displayed here to day in honor of his Majesty's birth day. The troops in garrison and the Royal marines were drawn out in line at noon on the King's Works, and fired a feu de joie. The Prince Regent, guardship lying at Gillingham, also fired a salute of 21 guns. The Royal Standard was hoisted at the Dock-yard and on board the respective ships in the river. The King's workmen in all the departments were allowed half a day's holiday.

MARGATE, April 24.

Yesterday being the anniversary of His Majesty's Birth Day, the same was observed here with the greatest demonstrations of joy, the morning was ushered in by the ringing of bells, which continued at intervals during the day, flags were hoisted by the shipping in the harbour, and at all the public places in the town, the Margate band also paraded the streets playing many loyal airs, which was conducted in the most decorous manner.

A few days since two young men by the names of — Castle and — Saunders, of Westbrook, near this place, were taken by some of the men of the blockade service in endeavouring to conceal some tubs of spirits. On Tuesday they were brought up for examination before the magistrates, at their office here, and after the strictest investigation they were ordered to serve his Majesty in the navy for five years, and were sent on board the receiving ship in the Downs.

RAMSGATE, April 24.

St. George's Day, the anniversary of the birth of our beloved Sovereign, was observed here yesterday with all proper respect, the royal standard being hoisted, and a royal salute fired from the Pier. A numerous party (the Isle of Thanet Troop of Yeomanry Cavalry) assembled and dined at Bear's Albion Hotel, as did a highly respectable party of Tradesmen of the Town, joined by several of our resident Gentry. Urbanity and conviviality reigned triumphant, for wit, the tuneful muse of apollo; many a welcome song heightened the entertainment. At a seasonable hour the parties separated, delighted with the social intercourse.

We are pleased to observe the Ostend Mail Packets are stationed at Margate upon trial for six months.

DOVER, April 24.

His Majesty's birth-day was observed here yesterday by every demonstration of joy. The troops were drawn up at the water's edge and fired a feu de joie, and the guns at the Heights thundered a royal salute.

Novelty.—The passengers by His Majesty's packet the Crusader, Captain Hamilton, had an opportunity to day of breakfasting and dining at Dover and of lunching and supping at Calais. She left this harbour this morning with two carriages, four horses, and a number of passengers, which she landed at Calais, having previously met the French packet coming out of the harbour as she went in. It so happened that the Ambassador from the Brazils, the Marquis Rezende, and the Chevalier Almeida, arrived from Paris, and wishing to cross to England without loss of time, the packet put to sea again and actually arrived in the Roads before the French packet, when after landing the abovenamed gentlemen she put about and returned again to Calais.

— Deal, April 23.—Arrived and proceeded for the River the Cam Bred Castle, Davey, and Jessie, Boag, from Calcutta; Eliza, Soper, from Grenada; Cygnet, Snar[illegible], from Cardiff; Success, Perry, from Liverpool; Stenshall, Dunning, from the Isle of France; Tovle Packet, Haliburton, from Limerick; Fanny, Brokenshire, from Falmouth; Enterprise, Williams, from Limerick; Herald, Shaw, from Belfast; Atlas, Pearce, from Dublin; Three Sisters, Thomas, from Liverpool; and Gower, Trick, from Swansea.—Came down from the River and remains, the Hon. Amidst the opposite endeavours of those who would bring the throne into contempt, and of those who would render it the seat of an ancient galling despotism, we rejoice to witness the growing cordiality of that attachment, which has so long subsisted between the King, the Lords, and the Commons of the realm. With all our hearts we repeat the dying words of Paolo Sarpi, in application to this cordiality—ESTO PERPETUA.

"London, Monday Night.

"Although the mail from Turkey brings very little intelligence, yet what is supplied, certainly increases the belief that the Grand Seignor has very much changed his tone, and that he is more disposed to listen to accommodation of matters in difference with Russia, though the naval and military preparations were still carried on with great activity up to the 27th ult. this the advices assert were the more necessary from the overwhelming force collected on the Pruth, by the Emperor of Russia. At Constantinople, it was understood, it amounted to 200,000 men. No mention is made of the suspension of hostilities, excepting that it is hinted that such an event was probable from the extreme wetness of the season in Wallachia and Moldavia. We learn from Odessa, under date of the 4th that the Russian troops shewed a great deal of impatience at the delay in the operations, and but for the assurance that it was unavoidable from the state of the weather, some disturbances might have broken out.

"By the arrival of the King of the Netherlands steam boat from Rotterdam, accounts have been received from Vienna of Friday last. Expresses continued to arrive almost daily from London, with a report of the transactions in the English funds, and never failed to make an impression on the markets in Holland. The quotations from thence, are, however, only a shade higher than those by the last mail, in consequence of the extensive advance previously. No later information is acquired from St. Petersburgh through this channel, though a report was circulated on Change that the Emperor of Russia had not quitted the capital up to the 13th inst.

"The sudden meeting of the King's Council this afternoon became a subject of general conversation in the city, but did not deprive the money market of its wonted elasticity, the public securities leaving off at the highest quotation given for them during the day. Consols for Account in the morning only touching 85⅞, rose to 86⅛, when an attempt, though a fruitless one, was made to create a panic by one or two extensive sales among the jobbers, and Consols for Account closed at 86⅛ sellers, and afterwards 86⅛ in buyers in private transactions. The Jewish interest are laying on their oars quite unconscious of their purposes being thwarted. The projected arrangement of government as to silver being made a legal tender is one cause of the rise in the funds from the expectation of its leading to increased issue of Bank notes.

"The last prices were—Red. Ann. 85 ⅛ ¼—Consols 86 ¼—Ditto for Account 86 ¼—4 per Cents. 102 ¼—Ditto of 1826 102 ¼—3½ per Cents. 93—Exchequer Bills 65s. prem.—India Bonds 100s. prem.—Bank Stock —

HOUSE OF LORDS—Monday, April 28.

Lord HOLLAND moved the third reading of the Bill for repealing the Test and Corporation Acts.

Lord HOLLAND expressed his opinion, that the words of the declaration would affect Quakers injuriously, and referred to the Toleration Act, in order to shew that in that Act, their opinions had been accommodated. He did not think that their consciences would be affected by the Bill, and should therefore abstain from making any amendment, excepting in omitting in their favor the words "on the true faith of a Christian." The Jews might be injured by it, and upon this point, his Lordship entered into some historical details, to shew that the Jews were kept out of office by the Sacramental Test, and the words "in the true faith of a Christian, in the Abjuration Act. His Lordship hoped the House would not adhere to those words as applied to Jews, and thus exclude them from Corporations In various temporary acts, and particularly in the reign of George II, these words had been omitted, in order to encourage the naturalization of Jews in the North American Colonies. This, therefore, was a precedent, and the words "on the true faith of a Christian," might be left out by Jews, either by a clause in the act itself, or by a subsequent proviso. He put it to the House whether in an act to grant a boon, and to concede it, it was fair to place another badge upon a class of men already sufficiently marked and degraded. He should pro forma move to omit the words

Government had no intention of making an alteration in the law which prohibited the circulation in England of notes under £5. after the 5th of April next, but did not at present propose to interfere with the circulation of small notes in Scotland and Ireland, but to bring in a bill to permit the circulation of Scotch small notes in England.—[Left sitting]

We understand, that in consequence of a petition to the Rev. Mr. Jones, numerously and respectably signed by the parishioners of St. Andrew's, the Evening Lectures will be continued throughout the Summer, in St. Andrew's Church.

The ball, in honour of his Majesty's birth-day, held last night at our Assembly Rooms, was fashionably although not very numerously attended, and was by far the most splendid we have witnessed this season. The number (about one hundred) consisted of the principal families of the County and City, with many of the officers of the Lancers, Highlanders, &c. whose handsome dresses added not a little to the splendour of the scene. Quadrille dancing was kept up till a late hour, the intervals of which were filled up by the excellent band of the 12th Lancers.

In the House of Commons, on Thursday night, the Dover Harbour Bill was read a third time and passed.—On Friday night the Gravesend Pier Bill was read a second time and committed.

Lord Brecknock, J. Marryat, esq. Sir E. Owen, and Henry Trant, esq. voted in the majority; and Ralph Bernal and S. Marjoribanks in the minority, on Mr. M. A. Taylor's motion to enquire into the abuses of the Court of Chancery, on Thursday night.

The Members of the Elham Friendly Society, residing in Hythe and its vicinity, and the Members of the Hythe Friendly Society, have severally petitioned against Mr. Courtenay's Bill.

Capt. Hall's company of the Royal Staff Corps marched early on Monday morning to embark at Dover for America. A detachment of the same corps is also under orders for the Mauritius.

We understand that the Hop Duty in the Canterbury collection will be collected on the following days, unless the Planters avail themselves of the Treasury Order, by giving bond:

FURTHER DISCOVERIES ON BRIDGE HILL.—As the workmen proceed in lowering this hill, they daily dig up fresh relics of remote antiquity. Since our last, two or three skeletons nearly perfect have been discovered; also a great number of urns, and other vessels of various sizes and forms. The urns bear an exact resemblance in form and size to those which are described by the Rev. Mr. Faussett, and engravings of which appear in Hasted's account of Kent. Several of the urns, in an admirable state of preservation, are in the possession of Mr. Tyson, of this city. What could be preserved of the skeletons has been removed to the houses of the Rev. Charles Oxenden, and the Rev. Mr. Hallett.

THE THEATRE.—Saturday's performances were announced as the last of the season, which has been very short, and abruptly terminated.* They were for the benefit of Miss Gordon, a lady respectable alike for her connections, character, and talents. She performed Juliana, in the comedy of the Honey Moon, and Charlotte, in the farce of High Notions. In neither of these parts was she sufficiently energetic; but there was an air of meek gentility, and of refined and chastened dignity, in her whole deportment, which made a great impression on the better part of the audience in her favour.

* Since this was printed we have seen advertisements of the manager's intention to keep the theatre open a few nights longer.

HYTHE READING SOCIETY.—On Thursday last Mr. R. Gilbert gave an interesting reading on the origin of language; being the first of a series. Several articles were submitted to the notice of the Society, and amongst them, a model of a Lock, copied from one in Upper Egypt, said to have been adopted upwards of four thousand years ago: it is a simple contrivance, defying the picklock, and well suited for barns, storehouses, granaries, and the like buildings, as an out-door fastening. Mr. Ronalds has ingeniously adapted it for an inside lock. A Lecture on Entomology—order Hymenoptera—was announced, by Mr. Tiffen, for the next meeting.

VALUABLE AND VERY DESIRABLE

FREEHOLD ESTATES,

NORTHBORNE, SHOLDEN, AND WORD.

FOR SALE BY AUCTION,

By Mr. H. REYNOLDS,

AT the BELL INN, SANDWICH, on WEDNESDAY, the 3d day of September, 1828, at five o'clock in the afternoon, (unless previously disposed of by Private Contract, in which case, notice will be given), by order of the Trustees under the will of Mr. Thomas Clark the elder, deceased, in two lots.

Lot 1.—That very desirable, compact FREEHOLD ESTATE, being part of Little Betshanger and Little Marby Farms, and comprising a comfortable and convenient dwelling-house, most pleasantly situated; an excellent barn and granery, stables, lodges, and other outbuildings, yard, garden, or orchard, and several pieces or parcels of land, containing altogether by a recent admeasurement 19A. 3R. 0P. (little more or less) the whole lying together, and advantageously situated in the parish of Northborne, about an equal distance between the towns of Deal and Sandwich, and late in the possession of the proprietor, Mr. Thomas Clark, deceased.

The Situation of this Lot is most admirable for the surrounding Scenery; it commands an unbounded prospect of Sea and Land, comprehending Ramsgate Harbour, the Bay, the Northforeland, the Downs, and Isle of Thanet, in one bold and interesting View. The House and Buildings are newly erected. Between two and three acres immediately in front are enclosed, and laid down for a meadow; and the grounds are so arranged as to be capable of great improvement at very moderate expense, and would furnish, altogether, a most [illegible] residence; and the soil is of the best quality.

Lot II. TWO PIECES of very desirable PASTURE and FRESH MARSH LAND, adjoining together, called the Serpentine Marshes, lying near the Scotts Streams, one of which pieces contains by admeasurement, 4A. 2R. 39P. this more or less, and is situate in the parish of WORD; and the other piece, containing by admeasurement 4A. 1R. 0P. more or less, is situated in the parish of SHOLDEN. This lot was lately also in the occupation of the proprietor.

N. B. A purchaser can be accommodated with a proportion of the money on mortgage.

To view the lands, apply at the Farm; and for further particulars, and to treat for the purchase, apply either to Mr. GRAVENER, Solicitor, at his Offices in Dover and Deal (where a Map of the Estates may be seen); or to the Trustees, Messrs. HUDSON and JACOBS, at Ash and Wingham.

CANTERBURY, August 12.

"London, Monday Night.

"The latest private advices from Paris contain nothing decisive with regard to the new French loan, or the return of Mr. N. M. Rothschild to London. It is inferred from this great operator continuing on the other side of the channel, that the negociations for the contract are not broken off as was reported: indeed it is said that the terms proposed were accepted by the French Minister some days since, and that the rumour just referred to was only set afloat to blind the public and to prevent them from knowing that the bargain was actually struck. Certain it is, that no stone is left unturned in order to give an impulse to the stock markets here and at Paris, preparatory, perhaps, to a promulgation of the arrangement with the French Government.

"It is satisfactory to find that the letters from Constantinople, which reach down to the 10th ult. brought by the mail from thence to-day, confirm the general tenor of the statements inserted in the Foreign Journals, as to the change in the policy of the Grand Seignior, who now unequivocally expresses a wish to accede to the terms of the July treaty. Thus much is stated in the private communications to a firm in the city, of which one of the partners is in constant correspondence, and has enjoyed this confidence during the whole period the question relating to the treaty has been in agitation. As far, therefore, as relates to Great Britain and France, there exists a strong probability that the friendly relations of each country, will be restored with the Ottoman Government. As to the demands of Russia, it would seem that nothing but actual compulsion will induce the Grand Seignior to give way.

"It is very remarkable, that although the Emperor Nicholas is at the head of an immense force, which has entered into the very heart of the Turkish dominions, so small a degree of excitement should have been created in the public mind at Constantinople, when the state of things is completely opposed to what it was formerly, when danger was much more distant. Instead of disturbances often attended with decapitation of the Sultan, the people awaited with tranquillity the result of the operations.

"The commercial letters generally are not written under any expectation of a revival of trade for a considerable length of time, and as a matter of course up to the latest dates, scarcely any business was transacted.

"The Money Market.—Although the public securities left off rather heavy on Saturday afternoon, they recovered to the highest prices immediately after the commencement of business this morning, and in the afternoon Consols for money and account were sold currently at 87¼, and left off at 87⅜. The settling day for August is not until the 28th, but in the absence of any extensive speculations, some of the dealers have entered upon transactions for the October settlement, at a continuation of only ⅛ per cent. This is a pretty strong indication of the feeling that exists within the walls of the Stock Exchange of a fall towards the end of the autumn, though for the present, from the want of an adequate supply of Stock, no reaction downwards is calculated upon. The variation in Consols for the ensuing account has been from 87⅛ to 87¼, and the latter the nearest quotation at four o'clock this afternoon.

"There was a pretty good demand for foreign stock to-day. French Rentes improved ⅛ per cent. on the news of the advance at Paris. The 5 per cents. remain nominally the same as on Saturday. Northern bonds are very firm this afternoon. Portuguese only varied between 54⅛ and 54⅜.

"Very few bargains were made in South American Bonds. Mexican have declined about ¼ per cent.

"The last prices were these:—Red. Ann. 88⅛—Consols 87⅛—Ditto for Acc. 87⅛—3 ⅛ per Cents. 96 ⅛—4 per Cents. 101 ⅛—Ditto of 1826, 105—Exchequer Bills 71-¼—India Bonds 112s. pr.

"Russian 94⅛—Danish 68—French 106: 50—Prussian 103 ⅛—Ditto new 100 ⅛—Spanish 10⅛—Greek 18 ⅛—Portuguese 54 ⅛—Mexican 29—Ditto new 39⅛—Brasil 63—Colombian 23⅛."

The fall of rain since our last has been excessive. On Saturday this neighbourhood was visited with a gale of wind, accompanied by heavy rains, unprecedented at this period of the year. A considerable quantity, however, of wheat has been cut and stacked. The damage done to the standing corn is very great. In some districts the loss is averaged at a sack per acre. Barley is ripe, but it has been so saturated with wet that it is of but ordinary quality. In Essex the crop of peas is good. Oats are greatly damaged. Peas have been strewed

A labouring man at Godmersham of the name of Epps, had his cottage broken open on Saturday, and plundered of several articles of wearing apparel.

On Saturday Charles Pratt was convicted under Mr. Martin's Act before the Mayor of Dover, on the complaint of his Master, Mr. John Reynolds, of having wantonly and cruelly ill-treated a heifer. It appeared that in driving two of his master's heifers to water he tied them tightly together by the tails, and in the violent struggles of the poor beasts to get loose, a joint in the tail of one of them was torn asunder, which caused the animal the most excruciating suffering. The offender was fined 40s. and not being provided with money for payment, was sent to the tread mill for a month, unless the penalty be sooner paid.

Canterbury Races.—Our races commence to-morrow week, and judging from the extensive and high patronage, the large sums to be run for, as well as the number of horses which are entered, there is every prospect of some good sport. The stewards are the Hon. John Robert Townshend, eldest son of Viscount Sydney; and Brook William Bridges, esq., eldest son of Sir Brook Bridges, bart. There will be ordinaries at the Fountain and King's Head, and balls each evening at Bellingham's Assembly Rooms. Dowton is collecting his corps dramatique, and Quantrell will exhibit his fire-works on the venerable monastry grounds. We should regret to see the City Races lose their attraction, and congratulate the lovers of this rational recreation upon the support received this season from the gentry of the county. Although the ground is somewhat uneven, yet we may safely affirm that there is not a piece of turf used as a race course in this county superior to Barham Downs. As men of Kent we ought to respect this spot, which has been the theatre of so many scenes of war and peace; and as a small tribute of our veneration, it is but justice to meet once a year to witness a most interesting, and at the same time one of the most civilized amusements in which the human race can engage. Many may justly censure bull-baiting, cock-fighting, and other ferocious sports, and some may say with Thomson—

Poor is the triumph o'er the timid hare.

But what can equal the pleasure experienced in witnessing the fleetness of nature's noblest animal. Whilst striving for the mastery

Hills, vales, and floods appear already crost,

POPE.

The improvements at Bridge Hill will be sufficiently advanced to enable the road to be used during the race week; and we are pleased to find the trustees have come to the resolution of lowering Barham Hill and Denne Hill.

Lady Noel Byron, and her interesting daughter Ada, are for the present residing at the Bush Hotel, Southsea: in the interim Bifrons House is occupied by Admiral Sir William Johnstone Hope, G.C.B. and M.P. and Lady Athlone.

Deptford Regatta.—A handsome wherry, and other prizes, given by the ladies and gentlemen of Deptford and its vicinity, were on Monday contested for in five heats by six watermen, but in consequence of a dispute arising in the grand heat, the decision was fixed for the following day. The day was extremely propitious for the occasion, and as usual a numerous assemblage of spectators, inhabitants of Deptford and its vicinity, congregated on the river and its banks. Four heats were most admirably contested on Monday; but on two of the men named Hovey and Hemmings, as being the best men of the first four heats, starting for the last and grand heat, some fouling took place contrary to the articles of agreement, and the managers declared that the last heat should be rowed over again on the following day. In consequence, on Tuesday Hovey and Hemmings started for the prize, and after a spirited contest, the boat was won by Hovey, amidst the cheers of a number of spectators.

relative to the affairs of the East, is hinted at, and that Great Britain and Austria will be left alone to take care of each others interests. If this news were authentic, it is natural to conclude that French Stock would fall rapidly; but on the contrary, the movement is rather upwards here and at Paris."

"Pretty copious showers have fallen in the course of to-day, without however renewing much alarm as to the crops; a large portion of which has been housed since the return of fine weather. To-morrow it seems likely that the prices of all kinds of grain will be lower at Mark-lane.

"A mail from Flanders has arrived to-day, bringing the latest accounts from Germany. Wheat and other kinds of grain were rising contrary to the former intelligence, and in some places much damage had been done to the crops.

"The Money Market.—A new Spanish Commission loan has for the hundredth time been spoken of in the City to-day, and however improbable it may seem that Ferdinand should ever succeed in obtaining more money from this country unless he recognises his former debts, Spanish Bonds experienced an advance of 1 per cent. A great degree of disgust is felt at the conduct of Count Ofalia, and the little reliance that was to be placed on the expectation held out on the subject of the British claims; therefore should any thing arise at all in favour of an arrangement, it will be through some other medium than the Count. By some it is mentioned that in the event of a new loan a certain portion of the Constitutional Bonds will be taken in payment, and that the remainder is to be in cash. This we feel confident will never be acceded to, as without an unqualified recognition Ferdinand will never, if then, succeed in getting a farthing more from British capitalists.

"The Spanish Bonds of 1823, do not appear to be at all influenced by what was done in the other stock, the closing price being 7⅛. Russian are rising, though not rapidly, and fetch from 95½ to 96. Some business was also transacted in French Rentes at 107: 50, and in the 3 per Cents at 72: 75.

"The Consol market continues very inactive, the variation up to its close this afternoon not exceeding ⅛ per cent. This must be considered as a remarkable circumstance so near to the termination of the account. Many of the dealers are preparing to leave town in order to invigorate themselves for an increase of speculation towards the end of the year. Consols for money and account left off at 87 ⅛ to ⅜, and for the month of October at 87 ⅜ sellers.

"The last prices were these:—Red. Ann. 88—Consols 87 ⅛ ⅜—Ditto for Acc. 87 ⅛ ⅜—3 ⅛ per Cents. 96 ⅛—4 per Cents. 101 ⅛—Exchequer Bills 73s. prem.—India Bonds 106—Bank Stock 213.

"Russian 96—Danish 62 ⅛—Spanish 11 ⅛—French 107: 50—Ditto 5 per Cents. 72: 50—Greek 18—Colombian 25 ⅛ Brazil 61 ⅛."

Canterbury Races commenced on Wednesday. The day was remarkably fine, and the company, although not so large as we have known it, yet comprised a greater part of the neighbouring nobility and gentry. Many of the equipages were exceedingly elegant. In the grand stand were numbers of most fashionably dressed ladies, who, during the intervals between the heats, were entertained by the fine band of the 12th Lancers, in full dress. The Red Barn, with Corder burying the body of "poor Maria," was exhibited to the gaping crowds at one half-penny a head; and the ever-memorable attack upon the Turks by Sir Edward Codrington at Navarin, was doled out from the parched throat of many a strolling songster. Several of the light-fingered gentry were in full employ. The Sybils made a good harvest, and many, unable to tell what a day may bring forth, are looking forward to the expiration of weeks and months, for events of which they will ever remain as ignorant as the sun-burnt oracle is who foretold them. The first race was for

The Ball on account on Tuesday next is an additional and interesting event, and cannot fail to give a zest to the gaiety of the week.

In the morning of Thursday the Annual Sermon for the benefit of the Kent and Canterbury Hospital, was preached at the Cathedral by the Rev. Dr. Russel. The text was from Matthew, 25th chapter, and part of the 36th verse. "I was sick and ye visited me" After a most excellent sermon, the sum of £56 15s. 1d. was collected. The sum received in the Assembly Room box was £1 9s. 7d. in the Cathedral box £3 1s. 8d. and in that of the Hospital £3 19s. making a total of £64 5s. 8d.

We are happy to hear that a Sermon in aid of the Funds of the Incorporated Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, will be preached on Sunday morning next in the parish church of St. Andrew in this city.

His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury will be installed by proxy at the cathedral on Thursday next. The proctor is the Rev. Dr. Welfit. The late Archbishop was also enthroned by proxy, his proctor on the occasion being the present Earl (then the Rev. Mr.) Nelson, the brother of the illustrious Lord Nelson.

It is doubtful whether the late Archbishop of Canterbury has made a will; at least none has, as yet, been proved at the Prerogative Court.

On Monday last the Right Hon. Lord Sondes left his seat at Lees Court, for his seat Rockingham Castle.—Just as the whipper-in, who was leaving the same day, mounted his horse, it became restive and threw him, and we are sorry to state broke his leg.

On Friday last a walking race, of fifty rods, for 40s. took place at Nash Court Park, Boughton, between Mr. Gooding and Mr. Mears, both of Boughton, which was won by two yards by the latter.

Thomas Williams, a man of colour was fully committed for trial at the ensuing Quarter Sessions for Kent, charged with stealing a sovereign under the following circumstances. It appeared that a gentleman bought some apples from a boy and gave him a sovereign in payment, who endeavoured to get change for it, and asked the prisoner, who sold nuts, and was standing beside him; he said he could not give him change, but taking the sovereign out of the boy's hand, he gave it to another man standing by, saying he would get it changed. As might be naturally expected, the man never returned, when the prisoner was apprehended, who declared he did not know the man he gave the sovereign to.

We understand that three persons will be examined this day on a charge of pocket picking on the Downs yesterday, the particulars of which we refrain from giving until that examination has taken place.

Five small children belonging to soldiers of the depot, stationed in this city, on Friday last nearly lost their lives, in consequence of eating the nightshade berry, which they had plucked from a hedge in the rear of the Cavalry Barracks. They were afterwards conveyed to the Hospital, where emetics were administered to them by the surgeon with success.

On Thursday se'nnight the Mayor of Rochester, C. Thompson, esq. held a Court of Admiralty for regulating the floating fishery on the river Medway, after which the members of the Corporation dined together at the Gibraltar Tavern, near Maidstone. The Mayor and Town Clerk of Maidstone were also present on the occasion.

A memorial has been presented to the Corporation of Gravesend signed by several of the inhabitants, representing the injury done to the resident tradesmen by the sale of wares of every description in the market-place of that town.

The Amphitrite hired transport, Lieut. Ward, arrived at Chatham from Harwich on Monday, with the 55th regiment, and sailed again on Wednesday. The Brailsford, Waters master, sailed on Thursday for Sierra Leone.

The Owen Glendower, 42, Captain Christian, was paid off on Saturday.

The Industry tender arrived on Sunday, with seamen from the coast to be paid off; and the same day arrived the Hazard, with invalids from Portsmouth.

Dreadful, August 17.—The Russian squadron now lying here will take a week longer to complete their repairs. Up to this hour nothing has been heard of Admiral Ricard, the commander in chief, who parted from the squadron in the gale off Scilly, on the 9th inst. in the Vere Chamgeusien, 74. The last time the Admiral's ship was seen by the squadron was about two hours before day light, when she was burning blue lights as signals of distress. The greatest apprehensions are entertained of her safety, but it is hoped she has put into some French port.

It was stated on Wednesday afternoon, that the Russian Admiral's ship, which parted from the rest of the squadron off Scilly, had been totally lost with all hands.

Cowes, Aug. 18.—Yesterday his Royal Highness the Duke of Gloucester arrived here on a visit to George Ward, esq. Northwood Park, and was received by all the yachts of the Royal Yacht Club (of which his Royal Highness is a member), dressed in flags, and under a general salute. The Royal Yacht Club house, on the second gun being fired from the Vice Commodore's yacht Louisa, likewise gave a general salute. The guns were solely managed and fired by Viscount Deerhurst, J. Campbell, esq and four captains of the navy, whose precision was much applauded by the admiring spectators assembled from all parts of the island. Streamers were displayed, and other salutes from the shore accompanied the reception. This day his Royal Highness, on witnessing the sailing match, expressed much gratification, and went on board his Majesty's revenue cutter Stag, Captain William Ferris, being the goal of decision of the contending vessels, to witness their passing. The Duke, on going on board the Stag, was received with every honour due to a Prince of our realm, the royal standard being immediately hoisted, and on his departure the Stag fired a royal salute.

The match for the Cup (of £100 value) given on Tuesday by the inhabitants of the town to the Royal Yacht Club, was decided as follows:—

		Time of arrival at starting vessel.

2. Louisa.....	Earl of Belfast.....	189.	5	21	30

The Miranda and Harriet gave up before arriving at the starting vessel. The Elizabeth (Earl of Darnley.) Elizabeth, Peri, Dolphin, Charlotte, Queen Gleadower, Hebe, and Thetis, withdrew before starting.

The match for the £25 Silver Cup, given by several members of the Royal Yacht Club, was decided as under:

CANTERBURY, August 22.

"London, Thursday Night.

"Ministers received dispatches from the British Ambassador at Paris this evening, which are universally supposed to relate to the state of affairs in Portugal, as well as to the renewed intention of France to send out an expedition.

"At the west end of the town it is generally stated, that Ministers are in considerable embarrassment as to the course it is necessary to pursue with reference to the affairs of Portugal, the imprisonment of Sir John Doyle and Mr. Young rendering it imperative upon them as it is thought to interfere. It will be recollected that in the speech which Mr. Canning made before any troops were sent to Portugal, he expressly dwelt upon the determination of this country to interpose in every case where the liberty or interest of British subjects were invaded. This sentiment was approved of by all parties at that period, and we have good reason to know that it was especially acquiesced in by the present head of the British government. This fact renders it more probable that steps will be taken to procure the release of those who are at present incarcerated at Oporto and elsewhere.

"Private letters from Paris in the regular course of post now assert, that the ultimate destination of the French expedition was not the Morea, as formerly stated, but Egypt; and that the force would amount to 30,000 men. A secret treaty between France, Russia, and Prussia, relative to the affairs of the East, is hinted at, and that Great Britain and Austria will be left alone to take care of each others interests. If this news were authentic, it is natural to conclude that French Stock would fall rapidly; but on the contrary, the movement is rather upwards here and at Paris."

This prize was contested in both heats—particularly the second, in which Pilot pushed Whisk hard; but just as the former had passed the winning post he fell, and slightly injured Macdonald the jockey, who however recovered, and rode in a subsequent race.

The first heat afforded much sport, Nonsuit winning by a trifle, and three others coming in close together, while one bolted, and another was behind—it was a fine race.—The next heat was won by Whisk by half a length, while the others were so close that the Stewards could not place them. The third race was also contested from the starting, for they went off at a slashing rate, and every inch of the road was looked after.—Whisk however won, thus carrying off the £100 and the £50 prizes.

On Thursday the sky appeared louring and a heavy shower of rain fell during the race. The course, however, exhibited a more thronged attendance than on the preceding day, and the racing afforded much more sport.—The first race was for Eight others were named but did not run.

This race was finely contested, the horses being well matched; Tom, which was almost distanced in the first heat, in the second got in close to the others, and in the two last, after a display of good jockeyship by the rider, won. In the two first heats, the contest lay between Sally and My Lady, who tried hard for the prize.

Owing to the lateness of the day at which the second race closed, the Kentish Hunters' Stakes was postponed to the following (this) day, and much good sport is again anticipated.

The various places of amusement have been very well attended. The weather became quite fine in the afternoon part of the day, and in the evening the city and neighbourhood was thronged with promenaders. Several petty thefts were committed on the course.

The company at the ball on Wednesday evening was very numerous, comprising the greatest portion of the beauty and fashion of the County; but that of last night thin, owing, as we suppose, to the fatigue consequent on the exertions of three successive nights. The grand dress assembly, this evening, is expected to be more numerously attended than any of late years.

We have much pleasure in stating that Lord Viscount Mahon and Sir Edward Doring, Bart. are appointed Stewards for the next year's races.

Among the company present we noticed the following:—The Stewards, Hon. J. Townshend, and B. W. Bridges, esq. who handsomely supplied tucks for the Ordinaries; Earl of Guilford and family, Lord Clifton, M. P. Sir E. Knatchbull, M. P. Sir J. Honywood, Sir J. Fagg, Sir H. Hawley, Sir W. Friday April 25 1828

Petitions against the Test and Corporation Acts were presented from Beverly, Lyme Regis, Colchester, Sittingbourne, &c.

Lord SHAFTESBURY brought up the Report on the Corporation and Test Acts Repeal Bill, on which Lord ELDON rose for the purpose of re moving his amendment of a former night, in order that it might be placed on record. He complained that the second clause was drawn up in the most artful way, and that it left out the most important part of the recital founded upon the Acts of Unio , that the Protestant Religion both in England and Scotland was as inviolably established as the doctrine, discipline, and government of the churches of the two countries. He proposed, therefore, that the recital should be amended.

The amendment was supported by the Earl of HAREWOOD and the Bishop of BATH and WELLS; and opposed by the Duke of WELLINGTON, Lord CLARENDON, and Lord HOLLAND, who was left speaking at the hour of post.

HOUSE OF COMMONS—Thursday, April 24.

Lord DOWNES presented a petition from the Corporation of Queenborough against the Bill for regulating the fisheries of that Borough.

A great number of petitions were presented against the Friendly Societies Bill.—Sir JOSEPH YORKE thought the tide was setting against the measure, and said it ought to withdrawn.

Petitions were also presented for and against Catholic Emancipation, and on several other subjects.—Left sitting.

His Majesty's Birth Day was on Wednesday celebrated in this city with the usual demonstrations of respect, and the Mayor and Corporation, with many of their fellow citizens celebrated the event at the King's Head Hotel, In the evening, which they spent with much conviviality.

Wednesday being St. George's day, was commemorated at Maidstone, to celebrate His Majesty's Birth. The church bells during the day rang merry peals, and in the afternoon a respectable party dined at the New Mitre Inn, on which occasion, W. H. Stacey Esq. the Mayor presided. The band of the West Kent was in attendance, and added to the hilarity of the company.

His Majesty's birth day was celebrated at the Royal Clarence Assembly Rooms, Dover, by a grand ball, which was attended by nearly all the resident and visiting gentry of the town and neighbourhood, as well as by the officers of the garrison, and several from those of Canterbury, Deal, &c. forming the most numerous and brilliant assemblage that has met in these rooms since the splendid Regatta Ball of last year. The Quadrille Band gave, as usual, the highest satisfaction, and the excellent band of the 63d Regiment placed in the gallery of the Theatre relieved the intervals of dancing by a selection of music. Refreshments were abundantly supplied under the liberal direction of Peter Hesketh, esq and the amusements of the occasion were kept up with spirit until four o'clock, when the company separated highly delighted with their entertainment and the polite attention of the Stewards.

Wednesday evening the Canterbury Catch Club terminated for the season, with its usual eclat. The Concert was excellently performed under the direction of Mr. Goodban. The usual complimentary toasts were drank; and the members departed highly delighted with the various concerts they have enjoyed during the past season.

On Tuesday last, Mr. Weekes delivered at the Canterbury Literary and Philosophical Institution a lecture on the various chemical unions with Phosphorus. After exhibiting phosphorated hydrogen, the lecturer observed it had been a generally received opinion that the ignis fatuus was caused by its agency, and although this opinion was main-but partially broken, and the third is broken into several pieces. We have received this intelligence but a short time before going to press, and shall hope to be able to state further particulars in our Gazette of Tuesday. During the progress of the work, a temporary road is opened through the park on the right hand, which is entered immediately on passing the church. Nearly forty men are employed.

MARCH OF INTELLECT.—A chimney sweeper of this county, who has a large household of children and apprentices as black as himself, and whose general habits of filthiness at home and abroad are of the grossest kind, was applied to the other evening by a couple of the lowest order of trampers for permission to lodge a single night in some corner of his miserable tenement. "Who are you?" said the master sweep, with a grin of defiance and contempt bordering upon the infernal. "We are British trampers"—said they, in as subdued a tone as their irritated feelings would allow. "And boxers too, I fear"—said the man of soot and filth. "Why"—replied the stoutest of the trampers—"we do sometimes fight; but what o'that?" "What of that!"—rejoined the sweep—"What of that! why you are then an abomination of the land—you are inadmissible at this and all such clean houses—I never offend my brood here (pointing to about a dozen of the dirtiest little imps that were ever seen) by suffering such men as you to come near them." And with that the master sweep shut the door in their face.

DREADFUL ACCIDENT.—On Tuesday evening about six o'clock, the men working in the Rail Road at Tyler Hill, filled two of the waggons with earth and got upon them to ride as far as the end of the embankment. They had not entered 150 yards in the tunnel before the leaver that keeps the boards of the first waggon tight in front of it, worked out of its place, by which means the boards fell out, and a man named Gregg, of Sturry, who was very incautiously sitting there, was precipitated to the ground, and horrible to relate, the wheels went over him and literally crushed his head and body. The waggon was consequently thrown out of its level, and the one behind coming in contact with it, with a violent concussion, absolutely turned it upside down, and dashed the other three men riding in it with considerable violence against the roof of the tunnel, who escaped with some very severe cuts and bruises. The men in the last waggon escaped unhurt. The Coroner, Mr. T. T. DeLasaux, held an inquest on the body, and the Jury returned a verdict of Accidental Death.

THEATRE.—Mr. Liston.—This leading star of low comedy found his way hither once more on Wednesday evening, and performed two other characters in which he has frequently "chained to laughter" the crowds of London. A contemporary intimates that he was tempted down by the offer of fifty pounds a night; but if he received this liberal reward, we do not apprehend that Mr. Dowton, on the other side, was an inconsiderable gainer. Mr. Liston's second audience was not quite so large as his first; still it was numerous and respectable, and must have been productive of much more than sufficient to furnish the spirited manager with his utmost expences. On this second occasion, Mr. Liston appeared as Delph, in Family Jars, and Lubin Log, in Love, Law, and Physic. The former is a part quite unworthy of the actor's claims and capabilities; but the latter presents one of his finest opportunities for producing effect in his own inimitable style of humour. Never was the mean conceited cockney more forcibly drawn by an author, or more effectively personated by an actor. Of Mr. Liston's general talent, the Herald justly remarks

ATKINSON'S CURLING FLUID.

CAUTION TO SHOPKEEPERS.

As the Stamp Office are sending persons round the country to inform against the Venders of certain articles of Perfumery, and among the rest, the above; the proprietor has in consequence taken out the objectionable passages in the Bills round the bottle, and the present is not liable to the Stamp Duty, the proprietor guaranteeing the Vender's being perfectly safe. The new sort is sent out with a label of very difficult construction, distinguished by a White letter on a Blue ground, and mixed with letter press, so as to form a compound plate, and an address label at the end resembling a Stamp. The holders of the old stock, "among which there are numerous counterfeits," are requested to have it immediately exchanged.

This Article has been held in the highest estimation by the Nobility and Gentry for 16 years, and is considered an indispensable appendage to the toilet of every Lady of Fashion; it thickens and improves the growth of the hair, gives such strength to the curl, as in a great measure renders it impervious to damp or exercise, and gives to the "toute ensemble" the most fascinating appearance.

Sold by the proprietor, JAS. ATKINSON, Perfumer, Wholesale, 14, Gerrard Street; and Retail, 39, New Bond Street; and by appointment by MR. SMITH and MR. JOHNSON, Perfumers, Canterbury; and most Perfumers and Hair Dressers.

WILKINSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT.

J. R. WILKINSON Sole Manufacturer to His Majesty, the Hon. Board of Ordnance, the Hon. East India Company, Corporation of London, &c. No. 63, Upper Thames Street, near the Southwark Bridge, and at his Paint Works, Surrey Canal Bridge, Kent Road, begs particularly to recommend this valuable and economical Paint, as the most effectual Composition for all exterior purposes of Painting on Wood, Iron, Copper, and Lead, as a preservative; on Tiling, to represent Slate; and on Stuccoed or Roman Cement Fronts or Pillars, to represent Stone. It is likewise particularly calculated for Ship's Decks or Bottoms, as it will last four times as long as Oil Paint, and resists the worm and marine acid. It will also resist every species of damp, or water, preventing from cracking or blistering with the sun, nor can it be rubbed off. This Paint will cover equally well on rough as smooth boards, thereby preventing the expence of planing.—Packed behind in Casks of 112 lbs. or 56 lbs. with the prepared Roller and proper Brushes (for each cask). Its use is so simple any Labourer can lay it on when mixed. The Public are particularly cautioned against any Colour that may be imposed for the genuine Anti-Corrosion Paint.—J. R. W. will refer to the Certificates from the above Hon. Boards, and he likewise begs to refer to the Southwark and Vauxhall Bridges, as a proof of its merit.—J. R. W. being a Manufacturer of all kinds of Colours, can supply those on the best terms, which may be had in any quantity.

To the Gentry, Clergy, Yeomanry, &c.

HAMELIN'S PATENT MASTIC.

THIS Stucco resembles Portland Stone in its hardness and general appearance; it requires no artificial colouring, never vegetates or turns green in damp situations, and as it adheres to most substances, is applicable internally as well as externally.

LITHIC PAINT, an article partaking of the qualities of the Mastic, is recommended for iron or wood work, and old stucco fronts, being reasonable in price, and very durable.

Every particular may be obtained of the patentees, Francis, White, and Francis, at their Roman Cement Manufactory, Nine Elms, Vauxhall, Surrey.

MR. H. JONES, SURGEON DENTIST,

UNION HOUSE, Bridge-street, Canterbury, continues to supply the loss of TEETH in a superior manner without pain, from a single tooth to a complete set, so accurately adopted as to defy the most minute inspection, warranted to answer every purpose of mastication, articulation, and personal appearance, without ligatures round the remaining teeth, a system practised by pretenders to the profession, thereby causing inflammation and loosening the firm teeth. Mr. J. having seen several cases in Canterbury of that destructive system continued to be practised, feels it indispensably necessary to add that his mode of fixing artificial teeth is entirely different, and equal to any dentist in the kingdom. Every operation, incident to the teeth and gums, performed with precision. Early communication will be requisite as the present stay will be limited. On Tuesday night, a gentleman of Forfar shot a wild swan on the Loch. It is a beautiful animal; weighs upwards of 20lb.; measures across, when the wings are expanded, 7 feet 10 inches; and from the point of its bill to the tail, 4 feet 8 inches.—Scotch Paper.

EAST INDIA SHIPPING.—Wednesday a Court of Directors was held at the East India House, when the following ships were thus timed, viz.:—Prince Regent and Rose, for Madras and Bengal, be afloat 15th of March, sail to Gravesend 31st ditto, stay there thirty days, and be in the Downs on the 3d of May. Asia and Marchioness of Ely, for Bengal direct, be afloat on the 14th of April, sail to Gravesend on the 29th ditto, stay there thirty days, and be in the Downs on the 2d of June.

Captain Thomas Duncan was sworn into the command of the ship Castle Huntly, consigned to China direct.

The Sir William Wallace, Wilson, has arrived in the River; she sailed from Calcutta on the 9th of September.

DEATH BY THE BITE OF A TAME FOX.—About a fortnight ago, as a man in the employment of Mr. Morton, the landlord of the Derby Arms, at Croydon, was engaged cleaning a horse in his master's yard, a tame fox, which was kept chained on the premises, bit him on the calf of the leg. The wound, which was very slight, was dressed; but in a few days afterwards, the unfortunate man began to show evident symptoms of hydrophobia, and although the usual means were adopted for mitigating the paroxysms, the unhappy patient expired, after suffering all the tortures produced by that dreadful malady. Previous to the fox having bitten the deceased, the animal was not considered mad; and the men were in the habit of playing with it continually, without any apprehension. Even after it had bitten the deceased, it exhibited no more ferocity than before the accident. Mr. Morton had the animal destroyed immediately, on ascertaining the danger of keeping it any longer on his premises.

PAINTERS' PENSION SOCIETY.—On Monday a general meeting of the Subscribers of the Printers' Pension Society, for the relief of aged and distressed Printers and their Widows, took place at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street, to elect eight men and four women as Pensioners. The candidates amounted to thirty-two, all of whose cases were of the most deserving description. The ballot commenced at twelve o'clock, and ended at four, when the following were declared duly elected.

John Bennison.....	1,4187	John Bray	1,004
George Adams.....	1,365	Henry Walker	1,512
John Combs.....	1,40	Hannah Knight	1213
George Gall.....	1,099	Catherine Hay	639
Thomas Rowland.....	1,529	Elizabeth Watkins ...	1,030
Peter Geohegan.....	1,056	Hannah James	427

The Male Pensioners will receive 12l. per annum, and the Female Pensioners 8l. It was the first election of the Society, but it is expected that in the July election, if the subscriptions to so benevolent an object should continue to come forward as they have hitherto done, the number of pensioners to be then elected will be considerably increased.

The Judges met yesterday at Westminster, and subject to his Majesty's approbation, to be signified under his Royal Sign Manual, chose the Circuits in the following order:—

Norfolk—Lord Tenterden and Mr. Baron Garrow.
Home—Lord Chief Justice Best and Mr. Justice Burrough.
Midland—Lord Chief Baron and Mr. Justice Holroyd.
Northern—Mr. Justice Bayley and Mr. Baron Hullock.
Oxford—Mr. Justice Park and Mr. Baron Vaughan.
Western—Mr. Justice Littledale and Mr. Justice Gaselee.

CANTERBURY, February 1.

OPENING OF THE SESSION.

This momentous era, to which the fears of one part of the nation, and the hopes of the other, were directed with the most intense solicitude, has arrived, and produced both information and incident peculiarly gratifying to our feelings, and encouraging to our anticipations and labours. We were among the partakers of the warmest and strongest hopes, and we have not been disappointed. We had no more fear than was just sufficient to preserve our hope from rising into certainty and assurance; and now that pittance of apprehension is gone, and we feel unrestrained and unqualified joy in the prospect of every thing being done—promptly and vigorously done—that the resources of the country will admit, to promote the continuance ridiculous question. But we prefer waiting for the measures of Ministers and the proceedings of Parliament, to making any effort of our own to predetermine their duty, or the subject upon which the necessities of the country will soon compel them to decide.

We have received, from a correspondent calling himself AMICUS, some remarks and statements in reply to our leading article of Friday last, on the projected Westgate Prison, and the already burdensome amount of parochial taxation. For the opinions we publish in that portion of our paper, we are perfectly willing to continue responsible; nor do we feel under any obligation to insert, or even to acknowledge, the letters we may receive in disapprobation of such opinions; but the communication of AMICUS comes in that shape, and is given in that spirit, which appear to entitle it to some passing notice: we therefore give the substance of it, leaving our readers to judge between us.

1st.—I would beg to state the City of Canterbury pays, out of the Rates collected for the support of the poor, two County Rates.—One for the City, and the other for that part of the Parish of St. Paul, in the County of Kent.

2ndly.—Canterbury being a Garrison Town, the Guardians of the Poor are put to considerable expence on many occasions by Regiments being sent abroad, leaving their wives and families in this City, a burden on the Poor's Rate; and, it not unfrequently happens, that after having had families of this description, who from ill health have been kept in the Workhouse a considerable time, the Guardians of the Poor, as the best way of getting rid of them, have furnished them with means to assist them home. In addition to this, the applications from unfortunate women following the Army, whose situations require the most prompt attention, is continual.

3rdly—No inconsiderable expence is occasioned by an extra parochial place unfortunately adjoining the city, whose poor while here we are bound to maintain, although they contribute nothing towards the poor's rate.

4thly—The central situation of Canterbury exposes the poor's rate to many calls, which, were it differently situated, it would escape in the winter most especially; the doors of the chief magistrate, as well as the guardians of the poor, are surrounded by unfortunate shipwrecked mariners, who, whether this calamity occurs off the Reculvers, Margate, Broadstairs, Ramsgate, Deal, Dover, &c. generally pass through this city on the way to London; or should it happen on the opposite coast and some friendly vessel lands them on ours the result is still the same.

5thly—When objects of poverty and disease apply to distant parishes of our county for relief and medical assistance, they most charitably recommend the applicants to go to the Kent and Canterbury Hospital, and when arrived here, instead of obtaining admission into that excellent institution, which they are generally unable to do, (for want of a proper recommendation) they are from necessity admitted into the Canterbury poorhouse.

The above disadvantages, with many minor ones, not now necessary to name, are, I take it, without remedy; others I shall now proceed to name, which might in some degree be grappled with: and—First, much saving would be effected in the poor rate, were masters who employ journeymen or labourers of any description, to give the preference to their own poor, many of whom are obliged to apply to the guardians of their parishes for relief, while those who do not belong to the city, are kept in employ.

2ndly—Another considerable saving might be effected in the poor's rate of this city, if the plan adopted by country parishes was closely followed here—that of hiring no servants for the year, but such as belonged to, and are legally settled in, Canterbury.

3dly—It is an invariable rule with other places, to employ their own poor in repairing the Rye, as well as Turnpike Roads; not so in Canterbury, where some of the parishes (St. Mary Bredin, St. Paul, St. Mary Northgate, St. George, St. Mildred, and some minor ones) have a considerable extent of Turnpike Road, nearly the whole of which is repaired by poor who belong to distant parishes; this the surveyors of the road might prevent, by stipulating with the parties who contract for the repairs of the road, that the labourers employed on such should be the poor of Canterbury, unless (a circumstance I fear not likely to occur) a sufficient number of such could not be found. Now allow me to ask, whether the places whose amount of Poor's Rate you have compared with that of this city, are in any way similarly situated with ourselves; Should they not be so, you will at once see the injustice you have been led into, by roundly accusing those who require "such an enormous impost for the support of the poor," of mismanagement.

" London, Thursday Night.

" The letters by the regular mail from Turkey were delivered this morning. Thus it appears that at no time since the departure of the Ambassadors from Constantinople, has the communication from that capital been interrupted. Most of the communications are written under an immediate apprehension of a war, and on the 29th ult. the latest dates of the letters, it was understood that negociations for peace would be renewed. Among other communications by the mail is one from the Agent to lington, and he could agree with him in his political opinions but when he looked at his speeches on this subject, it was impossible to give support to the Administration of which he was the head, though he knew it was both pleasant and convenient to do so. He hoped, however, he should have firmness to oppose every government refusing redress to the grievances of his country.

Mr. HOBHOUSE asked Lord Palmerston whether it was the intention of Government to lay before the house the dispatches from Sir E. Codrington, and the report of a naval commander sent to the Mediterranean since the engagement.

Lord PALMERSTON had already stated that the expressions applied to the battle of Navarino, in the speech, were not intended to cast the slightest imputation on the conduct of the gallant Commander. That battle, he feared, had a tendency to interfere with the negociations with Turkey. He believed it was not usual to vote the thanks of Parliament for any victory over a power with whom we were not at war. With respect to the papers mentioned by Mr. Hobhouse, there was not the least necessity for their production, not the slightest imputation being thrown on Admiral Codrington, and their production might interfere with the existing negociation. He would submit to the house, that it would not be expedient at present to produce these papers. As to the omission of Ireland in the speech, it could not arise from any want of feeling of its importance, but it was not usual for the King, in his speech, to direct the attention of Parliament to any part of the empire, unless some change of circumstances had occurred, not the case in Ireland. It was true there was a great want of employment there, and projects of emigration existed, the result of which it was impossible to determine, but when the Members of Government were returned to their seats in that House, the state of Ireland would occupy attention. The majority of the Members of Government had proved by their votes that they were friendly to the claims of the people of Ireland.

Mr. HOBHOUSE gave notice that on the 14th February, he would move a vote of thanks to Admiral Codrington, for which he had an example in a vote of thanks moved by the present Prime Minister after the battle of Copenhagen.

After a few words from Sir M. W. RIDLEY, Mr. M. A. TAYLOR, Lord NORMANBY, Lord EUSTON, and Mr. V. FITZGERALD, the Report was brought up and agreed to.

On the motion of Lord JOHN RUSSELL, leave was given to bring in a Bill to exclude the Borough of Penryn from sending Members to Parliament, and to enable Manchester to do so. He intended to propose that the right of voting should be vested in housekeepers assessed for tenements of £20. a year to the poor rates.

Mr. TENNISON moved for leave to bring in a Bill to disfranchise the Borough of East Retford, and to allow the Borough of Birmingham to return members in lieu thereof.

After some words from Mr. BANKS, the Bill was brought in, read first time, and ordered to be read a second time on the 15th February.—Adjourned.

A Detachment belonging to the 3d or East Kent Buffs, marched from this City on Monday, on their route for Chatham, from whence they will, with other detachments, embark at Gravesend for India.

We hear that the Board of Directors of that very excellent Society, the London Mutual Benefit Insurance Institution, have established a branch at Ashford.

The man and woman who were apprehended on suspicion of uttering counterfeit coin in this City (as mentioned in our last) underwent a long examination on Tuesday before the Mayor at the Guildhall, and which was adjourned till Tuesday next, in order to give time to procure further evidence.

The dwelling house of a poor man of the name of Smithers, in the parish of Ickham, was burglariously entered on Tuesday night or early on Wednesday morning, and several articles stolen therefrom, amongst which were a ten and a five pound note of the Canterbury Union Bank, two sovereigns, half a sovereign, a five shilling piece, and a gold ring. The villains had the audacity to enter the bed-room, from whence they took the above articles, whilst the poor old man and his wife were asleep, and effected their entrance and escape so quietly as not to arouse them.

We understand it is in the contemplation of the Trustees of the Provident Institution, to erect a handsome building in a central part of this city, for the purposes of that Institution.

A few evenings since, some person unperceived entered the shop of Mr. Andrews, druggist, of Ashford, and stole some silver and halfpence, with which they effected their escape. And nearly at the same time in the evening, some person stole a cheese from the shop of Mrs. Wanstall's, grocer, at Ashford, and made off without being detected.

A meeting is to be held at Cranbrook, next week, to petition Parliament for the repeal of the Hop Duty.

The consecration of the new church at Brighton took place on the 25th of January.—The solemnities usually celebrated on these occasions were performed by the Lord Bishop of Chichester, assisted by several of the clergy of the diocese. The inaugural sermon was preached
