DREADFUL ACCIDENT AT HYDE.—THIRTY MEN KILLED.

On Wednesday a dreadful and extensively fatal accident occurred at Hyde, a manufacturing town, about eight miles from Manchester, by the falling of a floor. The master-spinners had declared their determination to deduct 10 per cent. fortnightly, from the wages of such of their workmen as would not give up subscribing to the Union, the workmen appointed a meeting of their body, to be held at the Norfolk Arms public-house, in Hyde, on Wednesday evening, to consider what steps they ought to take under these circumstances. At half-past eight the meeting was held, and it was attended by at least 700 persons. About half-past nine part of the Assembly room, without previously either cracking or bending, gave way, and falling, with at least 250 persons upon it, on the floor of the travellers' room beneath, carried that with it into the cellar. The crash, and the tremendous shriek which accompanied it, was most appalling. Those who stood on that part of the room which had not fallen burst open the door, rushed down stairs, and got out of the house as quickly as they could, whilst others leaped through the windows. In the mean time, those who had fallen with the floor were huddled together in one side of the cellar, the floor of the travellers' room having given way at the one side before it did on the other, though the beams of the upper room had given way in the centre.

In about a quarter of an hour all that could make their escape were out: in the cellar there remained between 40 and 50 persons, a great many of them lifeless, the groans of the rest being the only sign that they were not all beyond hope. A way was as soon as possible cleared in the cellar, and the sufferers were conveyed up stairs, and as they were brought up were examined by four professional gentlemen. Of those who were taken out quite dead, the number was no fewer than twenty-nine persons, and one died on Thursday forenoon, making in all 30 persons thus suddenly deprived of existence.

Of the rest of the persons who were taken out, there are perhaps five or six, whose cases, though not altogether hopeless, are of a very despairing cast. Of course the news of the accident made a great uproar in the town, the meeting being almost entirely composed of people residing there. Fathers, mothers, sons, daughters, brothers and sisters, husbands and wives, were seen rushing from every quarter, some without shoes or hats, others half dressed, and all exhibiting feelings of the most intense agony; and crowding to the place, added still more to the indescribable confusion. The room was about 40 feet long, and 17 broad, and the part which fell in is about three feet short of the half. That which fell was the most crowded part, it being near the door by which they entered. In the morning the constable took upwards of 120 hats from the cellar, besides a great number of bonnets and shawls, and other articles of dress. The two beams which gave way were each 15 inches by 7, and appeared to be quite fresh; they were both broken nearly at the centre. The door of the travellers' room was supported by joints only.

A detachment belonging to the 73d of Foot arrived in town on Thursday from Chatham, on route to Cork.

On Saturday last John Reynolds, a coachman, was brought before the magistrates of the Home Division, at their office in Bridge-street, in this city, on a charge of running against and upsetting a pony cart, in the parish of Bridge, in this county, on the 28th of July last.

William Holloway (the prosecutor) stated that on the above day he was driving a pony and cart down the hill leading into the parish of Bridge, and when about half way down he saw the coach, driven by defendant, and drawn by four horses, coming down the hill after him; he pulled his pony on one side of the road, leaving sufficient space for two coaches to pass, but the hind wheel of the coach on passing him struck his cart and broke his harness; his pony ran away down the hill, and the cart was upset, and himself, wife, and daughter, who were in the cart, were thrown out.

John Maytum stated that he was working on the road on the 28th of July last, on the hill leading into Bridge from Canterbury; that he saw the prosecutor in his cart coming down the hill, and soon after he saw a coach with four horses, driven by defendant coming after him, and immediately upon the coach's passing the cart, the pony ran away down the hill, and the cart upset.

Cross-examined.—The coach was driving at a steady pace; the coachman offered his assistance in getting the cart to rights; I heard him offer to take the prosecutor's wife and daughter on the road as far as they were going.

Alderman H. Cooper was called by the defendant, who stated that he was a passenger on the coach driven by the defendant on the 28th of July last. The coach was going down Bridge Hill from Canterbury, and overtook a pony and cart driven by the prosecutor, but before the coach overtook them the coachman called out to get out of the way, and passed the cart at a narrow part of the road, but he could not state whether the coach touched the cart or not. He saw the pony galloping down the hill after the coach had passed, and the cart upset from the breaking of the belly band, and the prosecutor and his wife and daughter were thrown back into the cart, they were not thrown out. He got off the coach, and assisted them out of the cart, and offered them his seat on the coach. He further stated that the coach was going at a steady pace, and pulled up the moment the accident occurred. All the passengers on the coach acquitted the coachman of any neglect, and would have come before the magistrates if it was thought necessary.

The magistrates consulted together for some time, and convicted the defendant in the penalty of 30s. and costs.

Edward Boorman was convicted before the same magistrates, and sentenced to 21 days' hard labour at St. Augustine's, and to be once privately whipped, for refusing to perform the work of his master, W. C. Verrier, of Bridge, to whom he is an apprentice.

FAVERSHAM SESSIONS.

The General Sessions of the Peace and Gaol delivery, for the town of Faversham, was holden at the Guildhall, on Wednesday last, before the Mayor, Recorder, and a Bench of Justices, when the following important case was tried:—

Thomas Howland, a young man about 22 years of age, was specially indicted under one of Mr. Peel's late acts for "amending and consolidating the laws relating to criminal offences," which enacts that any person having been once convicted of felony shall, upon a second conviction, be liable to be transported for his life. The prisoner was charged with having on the 26th day of November last, feloniously taken, stolen, and carried away four bushels of cleaned wheat, the property of Samuel Charles Furmstone, at the parish of Faversham. The indictment also charged the prisoner with having been before convicted of felony; and also contained two other counts, charging him with the felony without the special clause.

Wm. Yile proved that he thrashed wheat in the barn on the 25th and locked the barn up, and on the next morning the wheat in question was gone.

John Wildish stated that he worked for his brother, a miller, at Faversham, and that the prisoner brought a quantity of wheat to be ground; that a sample was taken out, and it exactly corresponded with Mr. Furmstone's wheat; and also that the prisoner admitted to him that he had stole the wheat.

This witness underwent a severe cross-examination by Mr.
Lewin (who appeared for the prisoner), in the course of which he admitted that his own brother had discharged him for misconduct, and also that an altercation had taken place between him and the prisoner's mother, and he had said that he would "serve him out."

Samuel Charles Furmstone proved that he had lost some wheat, and that the wheat found in the mill was exactly like it. Upon cross-examination, however, he confessed that he could not identify the wheat.

William Jefferys.—I am the Town Clerk of Faversham—
I produce a certificate of the former conviction of the prisoner for stealing one gallon of coals, for which he was imprisoned and publicly whipped.

Mr. Lewin here took an objection to this evidence, upon the ground that the record of the conviction ought to be produced.

The Recorder, however, after reading a clause of the Act overruled the objection.

This was the case for the prosecution.
Mr. Lewin then called Esther Howland, who proved that she went with the prisoner's wife in September last, and gleaned a quantity of wheat.

Thomas Howland, the father, proved that he thrashed the wheat that had been gleaned for his son, shortly before the robbery in question.

James Chandler deposed that he saw the wheat brought by the prisoner to the last witness, and after it had been thrashed, saw the prisoner fetch it away again.

Wm. Beale, a miller, stated that about six weeks before the robbery the prisoner brought six gallons of wheat to be ground at his mill.

The Learned Recorder summed up the whole of the evidence at great length, and the Jury, after consulting a long

Miscellaneous.

Moderation of Ancient Churchwardens.—In the churchwardens' accounts of the parish of St. Clement Danes, at the time the present church was building, there is a charge of one shilling and sixpence for refreshments at a coffee-house, for the churchwardens and Dr. Wren (Sir Christopher) after a survey of the building, in which they had officially attended him. This is hardly surpassed by an entry in the churchwardens' account of St. Margaret, Westminster, for 1476 (two centuries earlier) quoted by Hallam, in his "State of Europe during the Middle Ages;"—"Also paid to Roger Fylpot, learned in the law, for his Counsel giving, three shillings and eightpence, with fourpence for his dinner!!"—Weekly Dispatch.

The Wisdom of another Solomon required.—A few days ago one of the city surgeons at Norwich was called to put to bed a female. He immediately attended the summons, and delivered her of a fine boy—wrapped it in a blanket, and placed it before the fire. The whole will be particularised in Catalogues at 1s. each, to be had of the AUCTIONEER, at his Furniture Warehouse, Burgate-street, Canterbury, on Saturday the 18th instant, and the goods may be viewed three days previous to the sale, which will commence each day at eleven o'clock.

will be the immediate signal of this arrangement same Paper mentions, in another place, as a proof of the great price which the Sultan sets on the loss of England, his declining to give any answer to the Russian Ambassador, notwithstanding the urgent representations of the latter, till the Ambassadors from England arrive. At the date of the last advices from Constantinople—which, through this channel, come down as the 1st of June—the arrival of Sir Robert Wilson Croker and General Guilleminot was expected hourly, the prospect highly favourable for their arrival. In the event of this event, the joy of the Turk, which had been very much before by the capture of the Russian fleet and the news of the defeat of the Russians, not scarcely knew any bounds. The interruption of diplomatic relations seems, therefore, to have had a good effect, that it incredibly raised the estimation of friendship in the estimation of the Turks. It is the more flattering, as it was not the price but an offering in a moment of national exertion on the issue of the affairs of the 17th, 18th, and 19th, a favourable to the Turkish arms, though the Emperor's effrontery to claim the victory. Indeed the reports published by the Russian Government, are all up for the meridian of St. Petersburg and their sole object is to keep the Russian national humour, and maintain the popularity of the Emperor, on the arrival of the captured Russian frigate at Bona. A vast concourse of persons to that place, and had every right to be proud of this trophy, under what circumstances it had been obtained, favourable presages which it encouraged. As said in the present account about a scarcity, to form the burden of all previous accounts on the commencement of the blockade of the Dardanelles, may reasonably infer that the capital was as well as in ordinary times. However, the noble public magnanimity which it had been the cause of, can never be forgotten, as little as the fort was fortified by the Sultan during that most critical

ASCOT HEATH SECOND MEET

The second year of this speculation (for as it appears to be) does not promise favourably, for there are less numerous than had been expected, nor is it so attractive. It is said by those who pretend to be in the secret, that the King does not wish to have such an assemblage as distinguished the first meeting, but gratified the curiosity of his loving subjects on 1

Destructive Fire.—Sunday evening, about seven o'clock, the neighbourhood of Back-road, St. George's in the East, was thrown into the greatest confusion in consequence of a fire having broken out on the extensive premises of Mr. Lang, sugar-baker, situate in Back-road, St. George's, opposite Blue Gate-fields. The fire raged with the greatest fury, and its progress was not checked until the whole of the very extensive premises was completely gutted. The damage done is to a large amount. The premises had been very lately rebuilt at a great expense. It is not yet known how the fire originated.

Mr. Pemberton.—This gentleman, who lately appeared with great applause at the Theatre Royal, Covent Garden, is now in this city, and, it is said, intends shortly to deliver a series of Shakespearean Lectures. Had not the arrangements of our Theatre been concluded previously to Mr. Pemberton's arrival, we should have had the pleasure of seeing him on the stage this week; but to those who delight in witnessing a masterly delineation of tragic character, these lectures will afford an opportunity which rarely can present itself out of the metropolis.

The Rainer Family.—Our readers will find an advertisement, in our present number, respecting the Tyrolean Minstrels. On this subject we copy the following article from a provincial paper:—

"The principal attraction was the Rainer family—the Tyrolean Minstrels; who have excited the admiration of the musical world in every part of Europe. They are four brothers and a sister, who is married, and has two children; but, according to the custom of her country, she retains her maiden name. Nothing can exceed the exquisite harmony of their voices, when singing their national melodies, and the almost magical effect of that species of singing called Jodeln, or Yodeln, in their language. This requires great compass and considerable power of voice, and consists in abrupt, but perfectly harmonious transitions from the lower to the higher tones, and vice versa. It is, in fact, a wild interchange of sounds of the tenor with those of the falsetto. The peculiarity of this style of singing lies in the unusual portion of passages that carry with them neither words nor inherent meaning, but which are devoted merely to the unfettered play of the voice among liquid sounds best calculated, as it would seem, to develop its powers; and in the wild and pleasurable exercises of it in which the peasants indulge amid their native hills and dells, when they design to reach 'the cave where echo lies,' and invite her to share in the song.—The Rainers, with the exception of Felix the elder brother, are totally unacquainted with music as a science."—Northampton Mercury.

Wool.—Notwithstanding the very low price of South-down wool, resulting from the ruinous system of free trade, we learn that Mr. Boys has sold his last two years growth at 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb. for fleece and 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per lb. for lamb wool; the former averaging four lbs. for fleece, and the latter 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ lb., and as some proof that good quality and great quantity of wool may be united in a well formed animal, we need only add that Mr. Boys lately sold to modious apartments at the Friary.—At nine o'clock on Monday morning the business commenced in the criminal court before Mr. Justice Park, and in that of Nisi Prius before Mr. Justice Gaselee.—In the former there are for trial upwards of sixty-three prisoners.

CANTERBURY RACES.

The races commenced on Wednesday, and notwithstanding the unsettled state of the weather, the principal runs were filled with visitors, and several private lodgings were occupied by families of distinction. An unusual number of horses were entered for both the plates and sweepstakes. The course on Barham Downs was as well attended as usual on the first day. We noticed the equipages of Lord Sondes, Lord Teynham, Sir Edw. Dering, bart. Sir J. C. Honeywood, bart. Sir John Fagg, bart. Sir John Brydges, knt. General Mulcaster, &c. &c. The running was as follows:—

SECOND DAY.

The weather was extremely unfavourable this day for the races. The rain fell in torrents in the early part of the morning, and continued with only short intervals until late in the afternoon. The company was consequently less in number than we generally witness on the second day. The racing was superior to yesterday's; the City Plate and the Gold Cup being well contested.

The fine band of the 5th Dragoon Guards, stationed at the barracks, were on the Downs, and enlivened the scene by playing some excellent martial and other airs during the interval between each race.

The ball at Bellingham's Rooms on Wednesday evening was fashionably attended. This evening a numerous assemblage is expected.

The Theatre was well filled last night. Cooke's Equestrian Artists have drawn a large attendance of company. The exhibition of Fire Works was postponed on account of the dampness of the evening.

In the morning of Thursday the annual sermon for the benefit of the Kent and Canterbury Hospital was preached at the Cathedral by the Rev. Dr. Spry. After a most excellent discourse, the sum of £30 2s. was collected. The sum received in the Assembly Rooms' post box was 14s. 1d.; in

On Saturday night as Mr. Giles Morgan, of Faversham, who is at present residing at Herne Bay, was returning from Canterbury about eight or nine o'clock in the even- ing, in crossing a rivulet which runs over the road, the horse stumbled and fell. Mr. M. was thrown over its head, and it is supposed that the horse fell upon him, as he was seriously injured and vomited a great quantity of blood the next morning. He was taken up in a state of insen- sibility and conveyed to the house of Mr. Sladden, where every attention was immediately rendered, and we are happy to say he is now in a fair way of recovery.

CANTERBURY RACES—FRIDAY, Aug. 21.

The races were this day better attended than on Wed- nesday and Thursday, owing to the fineness of the wea- ther. There was very little sport on any of the days.— On Thursday in the race for the Kentish Hunter's Stakes, Rosina came in third in the first heat, and second in the last heat. The following are the particulars of the races:

The County Members' Plate of £50 (Maiden.)

The theatre closed for the week with a good company; the performance was patronized by the Stewards. It will not be re-opened during the winter excepting, we believe, for one night in November. Cooke's Equestrian Circus nightly attracts a very numerous and respectable attend- ance. Some of the equestrian feats are unequalled, and the wonderful perfection to which the horses are trained is almost incredible.

The dress ball on Friday was attended by upwards of 200 of the principal gentry and neighbouring families, the officers of the 5th Dragoon Guards, &c. Senor Huerta's Concert on Saturday morning also boasted a grand assem- blage of beauty and fashion, which did not fail to applaud the Senor's brilliant touches on that elegant and fashion- able instrument the Spanish guitar, and also the Senor's execution in several admired airs on the pianoforte. The dejeune provided by Mr. Bellingham, consisting of the choicest fruits, cold viands, &c. was set out with much taste in the smaller room, and to which ample justice was done during the intervals of the concert. We can but regret that at a time when the want of a more refined amusement than that offered during the races, is so greatly experienced by the citizens and middling classes of society, that the Assembly Rooms were closed on Thursday even- ing, and we feel confident that at a future period with the sanction of the principal inhabitants, a City Ball would be well attended that evening.

Destitute Condition of the Greeks.—The Society of Paris receives daily letters from Greece, which depict the destitution in the country, the pressors left the country when they quitted of Ibrahim Pacha carried away with them every tool and instrument of iron they could find. The Greeks, therefore, cannot cultivate their land, they have no ploughs, pickaxes, and spades; they want hatchets, saws, and hammers; they want for want of anvils and sledge hammers, nor want of files and vices. The Hellenic Society has been generous to those who can spare to stand in so much need of, and has appointed their reception.

The late Duel at Bologne.—The family of the late lamented Lieutenant Crowther, who fell in the duel with Captain Helsham, at Bologne, in April last, has since that time made repeated and urgent applications to Mr. Peel and the Earl of Aberdeen, the Secretaries of State, to request the French Authorities to give up Captain Helsham. It was not until very lately that the Government announced their decision not to interfere. Under the extraordinary circumstances attending the duel, which has created a very strong sensation throughout the country, the decision of government which took to lively an interest in the cases of Miss Turner, Wellesley Pole, and others of apparently minor importance must excite universal surprise. The subject we are informed will consequently be brought before Parliament in the next session. Warrants, as will be seen in another part of this day's paper, have been issued and a reward offered for the apprehension of Captain Helsham; he was lately seen in this country, but we understand has since fled to Bologne.

Several guardians of the poor of the Canterbury work- house have lately visited the weaving manufactory at Ash, in order to ascertain the practicability and advantages of establishing a similar one for the employment of the poor under their inspection. The result was highly satisfactory, and we understand in a short time the paupers capable of performing labour will be employed. It is also contem- plated to hire land, and thus give general employment to all able-bodied men who may require parochial assistance. We have no doubt that, with proper superintendence, the scheme will work well.

The apple trees in Mr. Tyson's garden at Bridge, were on Tuesday night stripped of their fruit. A reward is offered for the apprehension of the depredators.

WOOLWICH, SEPTEMBER 2.

On Friday night last the master of a collier brig, delivering coals at Ranwell's Wharf, went on shore, and having taken too much grog, mistook his way and walked overboard and was drowned, his body was found the next morning close to the stairs, at Hog Lane, Watergate. He was owner of the vessel, and knowing his propensity to drink, his wife was constantly in the habit of sailing with him (except in this last voyage) in order to take care of him.

On Monday night the house in Hare-street, occupied by Mr. Allen, fishmonger, was broken open, and amongst other things an eight day table clock was stolen, the thieves had selected a silver tea pot and other articles of value, which they laid upon the table, but being disturbed, decamped without them.

The late gales of wind have done much damage in the river amongst the small craft, two barges were sunk off this town, but fortunately no lives were lost.

On Tuesday last a serious accident happened to Mr. Samuel Noble, high constable of the lower half hundred of Blackheath, residing in this town; he was passing through Charlton on horseback, when the animal became restive and threw him; in the fall he had his arm broken, and was other- wise seriously injured.

Caution to Parish Officers.—A strange and discreditable circumstance came to our knowledge this day at the Town Hall. Two women during their examination relative to the parish which they now belong to, stated publicly that they were paid from the parish they formerly came from (which was named) a reward in money, to remove to their present residence, and endeavour to make a settlement.

TO THE PROPRIETORS OF THE KENTISH GAZETTE.

SIRS,—Through the medium of your journal I request permission to reply to an anonymous letter (recalled to my recollection by a recent circumstance) suggesting to me the propriety of my endeavouring to stop the custom, which the writer states to prevail in the villages around me, of shops being kept open during the Sunday. I beg to assure my unknown correspondent, that I would cheerfully try to dissuade any person, whom I knew to be guilty of it, from continuing so sinful a practice. The writer of the letter to me should however be aware, that the duty of friendly exhortation on this, as on every breach of God's commands, is peculiarly entrusted to the resident minister in each parish. My attention having been called to this subject, I take the liberty of addressing a few words of advice to the farmers in my neighbourhood, to some of whom indeed I know they are unnecessary, to pay the wages of their weekly labourers every Friday rather than on a Saturday evening, or in some cases, it is to be feared, on a Sunday morning. This practice would be attended with many advantages to the servant; but with none greater than this, that it would enable him to settle his weekly bills and to purchase his weekly stock on the Saturday, thus giving the opportunity to the well disposed man to devote his Sunday morning to his God, and depriving the irreligious one of an excuse for neglecting so to do.

An anonymous letter, Sirs, would not have induced me to trouble you with these remarks, had I not felt the subject to be one of great importance.

The faithful observance of the sabbath was made a ground of God's blessing upon His people the Jews; as the neglect of it was of his curses. Descending in fire God commanded the sabbath day to be kept Holy. And if it should be thought that the milder spirit of Christianity permits us to break that Commandment, we should do well to remember the words of our Saviour, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law; I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil."

I am, Sirs, your obedient Servant,
