BRIDGE PLACE.To be LET,

B Either for two or six years, from Michaelmas next, BRIDGE PLACE, three miles from Canterbury. fit for the immediate reception of a family, with twelve acres of meadow land surrounding the house, and two walled gardens well cropt; coach-houses for two carriages, and very good stables for seven horses, with other convenient offices for cows, pigs and poultry.—The whole has lately been put into complete order.—The fixtures, and all or any part of the furniture, may be had with the house; and also four excellent cows, pigs, &c. with the coals, wood and hay.—Immediate possession will be given.

N. B. There is a trout-stream runs through the meadows.

For further particulars, and to see the house, apply to the Rev. JOHN FRANCIS, Mint Yard, Canterbury.

FREEHOLD NEAR CANTERBURY.

We were most fortunate to be given the opportunity of excavation at Bridge Place this summer. Our object was to ascertain the layout of the original foundations of a house built c.1640, three-quarters of which was pulled down at the end of the seventeenth century: the work was of great interest to architectural experts, as few similar houses of the period survive unaltered to the present day. On our Sunday afternoon expeditions we managed to excavate the well at the rear of the house, to clarify the layout of the former front of the house, and to examine foundations at both front and rear. Our warmest thanks are due to Mr. and Mrs. Pinhorn for all their help and interest.

Historic Interest

HAVING disposed of Morton House, Hatfield, Herts, to Lord Salisbury, Mr. Malcolm Pinhorn, who is associated with Phillimore & Co., the Farnham genealogical publishers, has contracted to buy Bridge Place, near Canterbury, from the Hon. Mrs. Neame. Bridge Place, built late in the 17th century, is scheduled as a building of historic and architectural interest.

It is being sold with an entrance lodge and six acres of ground through which runs the Nail Bourne. The house is the surviving portion of the substantial property built by Sir Arnold Braems, a Dover merchant. Later it formed part of the Bifrons estate of the Conyng-hams. In negotiations Mrs. Neame's agent was F. R. W. Berry, of Canterbury.

Busy preparing for the opening of the new Bridge Country Club are Peter Malkin (front) and Michael Loveday, who will be running the club.
