Nearly all the cottages in the village of Bridgetowne belonged to a Mr Duffell - They were mostly in bad repair & very high rent charged & seemed very desirable therefore to have a couple more cottages of our for our labourers but in the Parish of Bridgetowne.

A site was chosen in Bridge, at the corner of the field where the new back road turned off from Kingsbury Lane. It occurred to us that the cottages might be very cheaply built by using the large flints turned up in trenching for the Park Plantations. There were several cubic yards of them. Quite sufficient for the purpose & the carriage driven being all down hill. They were easily carted by our old horse to the site chosen.

In making the plan for the cottages use was profited by the experience gained by building those at Cross Camp where it was found in practice that the front door was never used; it was always kept locked and bolted while the lobby in which it opened was converted into a closet for stores &c., the family invariably using the back door for entrance and exit; in the first cottages therefore we gave only one door: the cottages seem to profit the arrangement & perhaps there is no great objection to it if the door so placed that it is necessary to cross the whole breadth of the wash house in order to reach the living room.

Dear Mervyn,

As promised some time ago I enclose a number of drawings of 88/92 which may be of interest.

May I repeat that I would very much like to know in due course how you develop the premises, and also to hear from you the dates next year when you will be showing your excellent display of the earlier days of the village.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Brian Stockwell
